In view of Rover's plans with regard to grand jury action, it is possible that the situation here will be such by the time Blaine calls his subcommittee together that all that body may want to do will be to draft whatever legislation the grand jury thinks is needed.

Citizens Will Continue Burleigh Idea on Homes

Continuation of "The Burleigh Idea" was favored by the Burleigh Citizens Association at a meeting last night in the auditorium of Western High School. The Burleigh idea is that of keeping up the appearance of property in that district and thus keeping values of that property near the original purchase price.

Harry Shannon, realtor, addressed the meeting, urging a campaign to paint all the homes in the area and otherwise keep property on a high level. After much discussion, which at times stressed the control of J. S. Gorrell, president of the association, a motion was adopted authorizing the executive committee to prepare a plan for the maintenance of property values.

Col. Mattice Is Awarded Jeanne d'Arc Medal

Col. E. L. Mattice, assistant scout executive, has been awarded a medal, commemorating the 800th anniversary of the liberation of Orléans by Jeanne d'Arc, for his part in the ceremonies celebrating this event here on May 4. Col. Mattice also received an honorary membership in Le Lyceum, Société des Femmes de France at New York.

Special medals were sent to the boys who handled the flags and to the bugler and every Boy Scout who attended received a souvenir medal. Col. Mattice has been empowered to present the medals for the Société des Femmes.

Michigan Man Assumes Position With Treasury

Ferry K. ### Rome Flight Plane Ready at Portland

Portland, Me., June 26 (A.P.).—The monoplane Pathfinder, in which Roger Q. Williams and Lewis A. Yancy hope to fly to Rome, landed at the airport here tonight after a flight from Roosevelt Field, N. Y. Rough conditions of the beach at Old Orchard, starting point of the proposed hop, prevented a landing there.

Williams and Yancy said they contemplated no transatlantic hop-off for several days. On the flight from New York they found that no instruments were out of adjustment. Besides adjusting or replacing these instruments a number of test flights must be made before the actual take-off, Williams said. The flight was accompanied by John McCormick, mechanic.

WILD PARTY CHARGED TO U.S. DRY OFFICERS

Canadian Liquor Dealer Says Men in Uniform Hijacked 15 Cases of Rum.

HELD GUN ON WATCHMAN

Windsor, Ontario, June 26 (A.P.).—Charges that men in uniform, United States officers had a wild party at a St. Clair River port Monday night after hijacking fifteen cases of liquor on Canadian soil, were made today by Joseph Thibodeau, liquor exporter, of Port Lambton.

Five men, some of them in uniform, pulled into Canadian waters near the dock, he said, and removing their shoes and stockings and rolling up their trousers, waded into the beach, covering the liquor with their hands. The liquor, carried to its craft and roared away, after taunting the watchman with derisive shouts.

The Port Lambton men said they had traced the seizure on the American side, learning that fifteen cases of whiskey had been turned in by certain officers, but that several of the cartons had been opened and bottles removed. The men alleged invasion of their regular daily waters or land. I don't think there is anything to it unless the five were hijackers dressed as officers so that the customs or Coast Guard men would be blamed for it.

"Last week the customs border patrol arrested a man on River St. Clair, who claimed he had been arrested in Canadian waters. He already has been assigned before the United States commissioner in Port Huron and is waiting trial. I have heard nothing of any further alleged invasion of our waters or land. I don't think there is anything to it unless the five were hijackers dressed as officers so that the customs or Coast Guard men would be blamed for it."

Women Fliers Engage Passage on Air Liner

Mrs. Marjorie Stinson and Miss Elmer Smith, prominent fliers, have made reservations in the new Lockheed-Vega six-passenger plane of the Washington Airways to leave for Europe tomorrow at 9:30 o'clock this morning for New York.

Miss Stinson, one of the first women pilots, and Miss Smith, holder of the women's endurance record, have been in Washington for several days, and yesterday night attended a reception dinner at the Exchange Club of Washington.

Mrs. Jean Assolant Welcomed in Paris

Paris, June 26 (U.P.).—Mrs. Jean Assolant, American bride of the famous French transatlantic flier, was joyfully welcomed to Paris tonight after arriving by automobile from Havre.

Mrs. Assolant was greeted with an aerial bombardment of flowers upon her arrival at Havre from New York. The former Pauline Parker, once a Broadway chorus girl, then entered an automobile with her husband and drove to the capital, having been forced to abandon plans to fly here because of regulations prohibiting women passengers in Army airplanes.

The couple went immediately to the Hotel Lott, where a throng of friends and acquaintances greeted the American girl. They were guests tonight at a dinner in their honor at the Club Amis de la France. A fleet of airplanes flew over the liner, dropping flowers and messages to Mrs. Assolant.

Club Is Sued on Printing Bill. Byron S. Adams, a printer, entered suit for $211.25 against the Union League Club of the District of Columbia, Inc., yesterday in the Municipal Court, charging the sum was due him for printing work he did for the club during the organization's recent membership drive. Attorney Ernest C. Oliver appeared for the plaintiff.

JENSEN STARTS NEW REFUELING FLY

"Three Musketeers" Takes Off in Attempt to Break Endurance Mark.

MINNESOTANS YET ALOFT

Roosevelt Field, N. Y., June 26 (A.P.).—Martin Jensen took off at 6:20 p.m. Eastern standard time today in a new attempt to set a refueling endurance flight record in the monoplane Three Musketeers.

With Jensen were his wife, Mrs. Margaret Jensen, and William Ulbrich, who accompanied Jensen and H. B. Clarke in two previous attempts to set a new refueling record in the Three Musketeers. Clarke will operate the refueling device in a suikier plane piloted by Emil Burgin. In the previous attempts a catapult device was used, but proved unsatisfactory.

Jensen carried only 165 gallons of gasoline as the big plane taxied down the runway and soared into the air. He planned to make the first refueling contact at 6 a. m. tomorrow.

Radio Set Is Carried. The Three Musketeers had been equipped with radio sending and receiving apparatus, by means of which the fliers will keep in touch with the Roosevelt Field Station and keep posted on weather conditions. Jensen had announced that if flying conditions here became unfavorable, he would travel to some other part of the country where the weather was more clement.

to establish an official record the plane must remain aloft an hour longer than the present record of 172 hours and 32 minutes, established at Fort Worth, Tex., recently, dropped away its eighteenth hour in the air at 9 p. m. and as it continued its "glangular" course between Minneapolis and St. Louis, it was refueled at Northfield, as it was on eighty-second hour of the 80-mile course.

The pilots, Thorwald Johnson and Owen Houghland, were hopeful that a new record would be established before the ship descends.

The Three Musketeers still was hovering over Roosevelt Field at midnight, nearly four and a half hours after the take-off. Jensen had not used his radio.

Minneapolis, June 26 (A.P.).—The Minneapolis endurance plane, seeking to better the record of 172 hours and 32 minutes, established at Fort Worth, Tex., recently, dropped away its eighteenth hour in the air at 9 p. m. and as it continued its "glangular" course between Minneapolis and St. Louis, it was refueled at Northfield, as it was on eighty-second hour of the 80-mile course.

The pilots, Thorwald Johnson and Owen Houghland, were hopeful that a new record would be established before the ship descends.

Watchman Seizes Man In Store After Closing

Jasper Davis, 26 years old, of 10 North 10th street northwest, in Woodward & Lothrop's store last night after closing time by the night watchman. He was held for investigation by headquarters detectives. His parked car was found near the building.

Davis said he became ill while driving near the store and retired to a rest room there at about 8:40. He said he was still ill, when found more than an hour later by the watchman.

Jack Dalton Weds Old Sweetheart

Man, Claiming to Be Member of Famous Outlaw Gang, Marries in Plane.

Albuquerque, N. Mex., June 26 (A.P.). Jack Dalton, 60 years old, who claims to be a nephew of Emmett Dalton, of the notorious Oklahoma outlaw band that made depredations in the Southwest 40 years ago, was married to a woman he said was "Old Annie" Burke, his boyhood sweetheart, here today in an aerial ceremony.

The Dalton gang broke jail in the early nineties and lived in the West for some time, the bands were hiding in the bad lands of Oklahoma. Stories were current at the time that a girl known as "Cattle Annie" Burke carried food to the members of the gang during their period of hiding out. A few months later the gang was rounded up.

The Dalton who was married today said he was a member of the gang, although there was no verification of his identity. He and his bride told a story of their reunion, during which the bride, who had been separated 38 years, said, when they learned each other's whereabouts and started correspondence, culminating in the wedding today.

STIMSON REITERATES U. S. DEBTS POLICY

Declares This Nation Will Not Participate in Reparations Collection Plan.

BORAH BACKS BANK VIEW

Secretary of State Stimson yesterday reiterated his announcement that the United States will not participate in the collection of reparations from Germany and that the Federal Reserve System will not be represented on the international bank created by the Young plan.

This policy is based on the theory that the United States is not a party to the agreement recently worked out in Paris by the committee of experts, Owen D. Young and J. Pierpont Morgan, having acted in a wholly unofficial capacity. Furthermore, past administrations have been instructed that reparations problem was one for the allied governments and Germany. In this respect, no change of policy under President Hoover has yet been disclosed.

The United States always have insisted that reparations and war debts are inseparable. The United States, on the other hand, has clung to the theory that the two are distinct, backing up its position by pointing out that we have claimed no reparations from Germany except for the satisfaction of adjudicated claims of American citizens.

Since the Federal Reserve System is bound closely to the Government, Secretary Stimson, presumably with the full approval of President Hoover, declared at the time that the international bank were first published that the New York Federal Reserve Bank would not be permitted to assist in the organization of the new bank or make appointments to its directorate.

Senator Borah indicated yesterday that the Senate approves this policy of the international bank. He added his conviction that the United States should not object to the settlement and will show an entire willingness to sanction considerable sacrifices in order to contribute to the economic stability the Young plan is expected to establish.

Sale of Two Cruisers Planned by Navy Chiefs

The U. S. S. New Orleans and the U. S. S. Albany, light cruisers of the second line defense, which have been out of commission since 1922, will be sold, the Navy Department announced yesterday.

Both ships are now at Mare Island, Calif., where they were taken for decommissioning. The United States purchased them from the Brazilian Government during the Spanish-American War. With the outbreak of the World War the cruisers were brought to Atlantic waters and operated out of New York City as escorting command.

Automobile Production in 1928 Sets New Record

World automobile production set a new record in 1928. The Department of Commerce announced today that the total production last year was 5,208,139 machines, an increase of 1,044,173 over the 1927 figure.

Combined output of the United States totaled 1,401,141, an increase of 1,020,761. Decreases were reported for England, Spain and Denmark.

Seneca Falls Man Succeeds Machold

William J. Maier Is Elected State Chairman by Republicans.

New York, June 26 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—William J. Maier, of Seneca Falls, Seneca County, a former state committee member for 20 years active in practice politics, today was elected chairman of the Republican State committee, as successor to E. Edmund Machold, re-elected.

The vote for Mr. Maier was unanimous. So successful had been former Chairman Machold in engineering the election of Maier, that the National Republican Club here shortly after noon.

As the feature of the election, attended by most of the important G. O. P. leaders of the State, came not the election of Mr. Maier, which was a certainty, but the resounding attacks launched by the new chairman against Gov. Roosevelt and the anti-democratic forces of the State.

Hamilton Fish, Jr., who placed Mr. Maier's name in nomination, made the transfer.

Gas Threatens Dozen As Men Rip Out Meters

Nearly a dozen persons last night narrowly escaped asphyxiation when gas fumes poured through the apartment house at 1638 Seventeenth street northwest, following the tearing from the wall in the hallway of gas meters by two men for whom police are looking.

The two men attempted to get into the apartment of Mrs. Mary Ruth on the second floor and when they denied them admittance they became angry and went down the stairs cursing, she told police.

A few minutes later she smelled gas and found that the three meters had been torn from the wall. Mrs. Ruth called police and firemen and the other occupants of the house. The Fire Rescue Squad out of the gas and assisted in clearing the house. Police were given a description of the men.

Lindberghs Arrive in Indianapolis

Colonel Is Silent on Fate of Baseball Magnate, Who Was to Meet Him.

Indianapolis, Ind., June 26 (A.P.).—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh arrived at the Mays Hill Airport at 6:20 o'clock this evening after a flight from Columbus, Ohio. They will spend the night here.

Col. Lindbergh is making an inspection of the airports along the Air-Rail Line of the Transcontinental Air Transport Co. He will probably leave St. Louis tomorrow. Mrs. Lindbergh was greeted at the airport by Mary Ann Ketcham, of this city, a classmate at Smith College.

Col. Lindbergh had no comment to make on the death here this afternoon in an airplane accident of James A. Perry, president of the Curtiss Flying Service of Indiana, Inc. Perry had been waiting to welcome the colonel this afternoon and had made a flight to another field. He was killed when his plane went into a nose dive as he took off for the return flight to the airport at which Lindbergh landed.

Stimson's Goat Unlucky: Can Not Join "Old Soak"

San Francisco, June 26 (A.P.).—"Old Soaks," when they happen to be parrots and belong to Secretaries of State, may "wangle" entry into the United States, but with goats, it's something else again.

William Hamilton Bones, a goat belonging to Secretary of State N. L. Stimson, knows this today, if goats can be made aware of such legal and social discriminations. Mr. Bones arrived here recently on the Army transport Melges to join his former playmate, "Old Soak," the Stimson parrot. Both had lived at the executive palace in Manila while Mr. Stimson was governor-general there. The "Old Soak" got in, but as no quadrupeds are allowed to enter the United States from countries where hoof and mouth disease is known to exist, Bones must go back to the Philippines, Department of Agriculture officials said here today. Meanwhile he is being treated well.

Kellogg May View Treaty Ceremonial

Former Secretary Is Likely to Attend Completion of Work He Began.

Associated Press. Frank B. Kellogg, former Secretary of State, personally may witness the formal ceremony placing into full force the anti-war treaty which bears his name and for completion of which he strove so diligently before leaving office.

Deposit by Japan of its formal ratification of the treaty is now the only step necessary to bring the pact into operation. Yesterday's approval by the Japanese privy council, the treaty is expected to be followed by its immediate sanction by Emperor Hirohito.

Although no arrangements have been made for the ceremony of Japan's deposit which will bring the peace instrument into force, it was widely expected that Kellogg would be invited to see the completion of the work which he started. It is believed that arrangements will be made by Secretary Stimson and the Japanese Ambassador, Debutchi.

Stimson Is Gratified. Mr. Stimson expressed gratification yesterday over the action of the Japanese privy council. He added that he believed Mr. Kellogg would be very pleased by the pact's approval by Japan.

No proclamation by President Hoover is necessary to make the treaty effective, Secretary Stimson said, and the ceremony of Japan's deposit would bring the pact into full force. After the deposit of the Japanese ratification the American Government would inform all of the interested governments of the ratification.

The treaty's formulation grew out of a message by Foreign Minister Briand of France to the American people through the Associated Press April 6, 1927, on the occasion of the twentieth anniversary of the entrance of the United States into the World War. As a result of subsequent negotiations between Kellogg and Briand, representatives of fifteen world powers gathered in Paris, and by signing the treaty solemnly bound their countries to renounce war as a national policy.

Guard at Ocequan Made Atlanta Deputy

The Department of Justice announced yesterday that Julian Schoen, a guard at the Federal Prison at Ocequan, had been appointed deputy warden of the Atlanta Penitentiary to assume his duties as soon as he could make the transfer.

Schoen was deputy warden several years ago at Atlanta under John Snook, who resigned in March, but left to go to Ocequan. Under the new arrangement Atlanta asked that Schoen be appointed as his deputy.

At the first court this year, the Prince of Wales walked at his mother's side in the procession from the drawing room to the ballroom and then took his place in the royal circle, while the debutantes were ushered forward one by one to curtsy to her majesty. The prince stood chatting with Princess Ingrid of Sweden and others of the royal circle. He wore the scarlet uniform of a colonel of the Welsh Guards, while the princess was charming in a dress of soft pastel shade.

The towns of the American debutantes, several of which were specially designed in Paris, attracted much attention. All wore the regulation head-dress with three feathers.

The personal business of Charles Gates Dawes, United States Ambassador to Great Britain, a month ago became the knowledge of the world yesterday after he attended his first formal function at Buckingham palace.

Just before leaving for London, newspaper men asked the ambassador if he was taking along a supply of silk knee breeches.

"You can go plumb to hell, that's my business," the envoy replied, sucking hard on his underling pipe. But when he appeared at court, he was without the English attire adopted by his two predecessors. He appeared in formal American evening clothes.

King Alfonso Greeted By Royalty in London. London, June 26 (A.P.).—King Alfonso of Spain arrived in London today. He was greeted at the station by the Prince of Wales, Prince George, Princess Beatrice, and the Earl of Cromer, representing King George.

The Spanish Ambassador and many members of the Spanish colony also were present.

Dawes, in Plain Dress Suit, Officiates at British Court

United States Ambassador Introduces Eight American Women; Bright Uniforms of Other Envoys in Contrast to His Attire at Royal Function.

London, June 26 (A.P.).—The simplicity of the ordinary American evening dress worn by United States Ambassador Charles G. Dawes tonight made him a striking figure at the third royal court of this brilliant social season held at Buckingham palace.

The dress he chose, instead of the customary silk knee breeches prescribed by court custom and adopted by his two immediate predecessors, was accentuated by the brilliant uniforms and glittering medals of other diplomats representing nearly every country in the world. As he stood in the diplomatic circle with Mrs. Dawes after they had paid their respects to her majesty, Queen Mary, the tall commanding figure of the general was the cynosure of many eyes.

Eight American young women were presented by Ambassador and Mrs. Dawes. They were the Misses Frances M. Barclay of New York; Rosemary Baird of Chicago; Dorothy Chase of Waterbury, Conn.; Natalie Cox of New York; Pauline Fenno, of Boston; Lilian Sanger, of New York, and Miss Edward F. Hutton and Mrs. Aymar Johnson, both of New York.

Her majesty stood in a beautiful gown of green and gold in the midst of the great ballroom in front of a single golden throne. The king is still recuperating from his recent illness at Windsor Castle. The queen wore a diamond crown and the famous diamonds known as "Lesser Stars of Africa" and also the Order of the Garter.

As at the first court this year, the Prince of Wales walked at his mother's side in the procession from the drawing room to the ballroom and then took his place in the royal circle, while the debutantes were ushered forward one by one to curtsy to her majesty. The prince stood chatting with Princess Ingrid of Sweden and others of the royal circle. ## CAPONE'S LAWYERS ASK WRIT OF ERROR

Eight Charges Are Set Forth in Attempt to Get Liberty for Gangster.

CLAIM PREJUDICED JUDGE

Philadelphia, June 26 (A.P.)—Alleging among other charges that the trial judge was prejudiced, attorneys for "Scarface" Al Capone, Chicago racketeer, today filed a petition asking for a writ of error (coram nobis) in an attempt to bring about the release of their client or a new trial.

Capone and his bodyguard, Frank Cline, also of Chicago, are in the Holmesburg jail serving a one-year sentence for carrying concealed pistols. They were arrested here the night of May 16 as they left a picture theater, were held overnight in jail of $35,000 each, and on the following day on their plea of guilty were sentenced to a year in jail by Judge John E. Walsh in the criminal division of the Municipal Court.

Rumors had been current for several days that friends of Capone were about to attempt liberating him, and a week ago Lemuel B. Schofield, director of public safety, said he understood the gang leader had offered $50,000 to anyone who could obtain his release.

No Reference to Cline.

There was no reference to Cline in today's petition for a rehearing of the case. Judge Walsh fixed Saturday at 10 a. m. for rehearing arguments on the petition.

The plea for a review of the case was filed by Representative Benjamin M. Golder, law partner of B. L. Lemisch, who represented Capone at his trial. It was accompanied by an affidavit of the defendant, alleging, among other things, that Capone was "compelled to submit to a trial before a judge who had predetermined his guilt and had stated that he would 'help convict the defendant.'"

Among the eight assignments of error cited in the petition it was charged that Capone "was compelled to appear

Rich Suitor Stole Her Life To Jilt Her, Divorcee Swears

Ann Livingston, Suing Millionaire Chicagoan for $250,000 Balm, Testifies He Broke All His Vows; Pathos Note Is Struck.

Chicago, Ill., June 26 (A.P.)—Ann Livingston, young divorcee from Oklahoma, completed her story today of her romance with Franklin S. Hardings, 62-year-old millionaire Chicago oil burner manufacturer, whom she is suing for $250,000 damages for breach of promise.

Her attorneys ended their direct examination during the afternoon and she began the ordeal of cross-examination, going over much of her story, her first encounter with Hardings on a train to Denver, his love making at her home in Tulsa, his success in persuading her to come to Chicago, the proposal of marriage, ensuing difficulties and the final break.

When she realized Hardings had deserted her on the eve of their wedding in January of last year, she felt paralyzed.

"I felt that everything in my life had been taken from me," said Ann, for trial in a courtroom crowded by people who were prejudiced against her defendant because of inflammatory articles appearing in the newspapers against the defendant, and that "defendant was coerced into entering a plea of guilty by reason of the hostile and theatrical display of numerous and unnecessary police officers, who constantly surrounded the defendant in the courtroom and in the presence of the jury."

It was charged also that Capone was "denied the right property to present his case not only to the court but to his own counsel."

Capital Auto Hurts Maryland Boy.

George Gesch, 8 years old, son of a fireman at Bladensburg, Md., was treated at Casualty hospital here last night after being slightly injured when struck by an automobile operated by Walter Thomas, of 1224 U street northwest. The accident occurred on the Bladensburg road on the outskirts of that town. The boy was brought to the hospital by "thoman."

"That he had broken all the vows he made to me. As it dawned on me slowly, I realized he had taken all in life that was precious to me, left me in a city alone with practically no money."

Her face, as she described her physical condition, showed no more emotion than at any other time of the trial, but her voice took on a note of pathos and it was reflected in the crowd of spectators jamming the little courtroom.

No mention was made during the direct examination of offer of the pre-nuptial contract by which she was to accept $100,000.

The name of a St. Louis newspaper man, Charles Nax, played a part in her testimony. It was Nax, the defense charges, who was largely responsible for the break in plans for the wedding. She testified that she never met Nax in a clandestine way, never had been his sweetheart, never had loved him, never had wanted to marry him.

Fall's Trial in Oil Case Is Set for October 7

(United Press.)

Justice William Hitz, of the District Supreme Court, yesterday set October 7 as the date Albert B. Fall, former Secretary of Interior, must stand trial on an indictment charging he accepted a bribe of $100,000 from Edward L. Doheny, in connection with the leasing of Elk Hills Oil Reserve, in California.

The trial of the former cabinet officer has been postponed from time to time because of Fall's ill health. He is now living at El Paso, Tex., with a daughter, and his physical condition is improved. Fall's attorneys here, however, said he still is weak.

Gen. Dorey Is Recalled; Heads Second Division

Brig. Gen. Halstead Dorey, who is now on duty in the Philippines, has been ordered to return to the United States and take over command of the Second Division at Fort Houston, Tex.

Brig. Gen. Frank R. McCoy was to have commanded the Second Division, but due to his duties with the Farquayan-Bellman conference, had been unable to report for duty.

been prominent in education circles in the District for several years.

Also in the District delegation are Harry English, director for the District of the National Education Association; Miss J. Anna Tennyson, secretary of the Education Association of the District; representatives of the Bureau of Education, the Interior Department and other organizations.

Dr. William John Cooper, United States Commissioner of Education, will speak at the convention and he expects to return with the party from the District.

Many matters of interest will be discussed and the District of Columbia delegation, headed by Miss Grosvenor, will play a prominent part in their settlement.

400 Arlington Tax Suits Are Voided

Order Sustaining Demurrer
in Test Action Deferred at County's Request.

Ownership of property which has been disposed of by tax sales in Arlington County for the last 25 years may be questioned as a result of a decision handed down in the Arlington Circuit Court yesterday by Judge Howard W. Smith.

Judge Smith sustained a demurrer to a tax suit brought by the Board of County Supervisors against Frederick W. Ingram and others, voiding thereby between 400 and 500 suits instituted by the county within the last few months.

The suits by which the county sought to force the collection of delinquent real estate taxes were brought under an act of the 1900 General Assembly applicable only to Arlington County. At the request of Commonwealth's Attorney William C. Glott, Judge Smith will delay entering his order for a few days, to give the former an opportunity to prepare papers in the case.

When a Child is FEVERISH, CROSS, UPSET

Colic, gas, sour belching, frequent vomiting, feverishness, in babies and children, generally show food is souring in the little digestive tract.

When these symptoms appear, give Baby a teaspoonful of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. Add it to the first bottle of food in the morning. Older children should be given a tablespoonful in a glass of water. This will comfort the child—make his stomach and bowels easy. In five minutes he is comfortable, happy. It will sweep the bowels free of all sour, indigestible food. It opens the bowels in constipation, colds, children's ailments. Children take it readily because it is palatable, pleasant-tasting.

Learn its many uses for mother and child. Write for the interesting book, "Useful Information." Address: The Phillips Co., 117 Hudson St., New York, N. Y. It will be sent FREE.

In buying, be sure to get genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. Doctors have prescribed it for over 80 years.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Chas. H. Phillips Chemical Co., and its predecessor, Chas. H. Phillips, since 1876.

WAIT FOR WASHINGTON.

President Hoover will become immeasurably stronger in his role as leader of the naval reduction movement if it is made clear in advance that the coming naval conference, to which present negotiations are preliminary, is to be held in accordance with treaty provisions in Washington.

The conferences between Premier MacDonald and Ambassadors Dawes and Gibson, and the obvious efforts to pave the way for agreement upon a new formula or yardstick for measuring fighting strength of navies, loom as logical and necessary steps if taken in conjunction with the Washington conference which must be called under the terms of the Washington naval treaties in 1931. These developments, as well as the interest which is purposely being aroused in the subject, would be evidence that Mr. Hoover and the foreign leaders concerned realize the importance of preparing the ground with the greatest of care for a scheduled event of prime international importance.

The five-power Washington Naval Treaty contains the following provision:

In view of the possible technical and scientific developments, the United States, after consultation with the other contracting powers, shall arrange for a conference of all the contracting parties which shall convene as soon as possible after the expiration of eight years from the coming into force of the present treaty to consider what changes, if any, in the treaty may be necessary to meet such developments.

The treaty became effective August 17, 1923. That set the date for the next conference as August 17, 1931, but the United States months ago obtained assurances that the signatory powers, Great Britain, France, Japan and Italy, would be willing to advance the date to the spring of 1931. Doubtless, President Hoover could procure assent of the powers to a further advancement of the date of meeting if the preparatory work now in progress warranted it.

Even a cursory survey of the present situation shows the advantages of operating under the provisions of the Washington treaty and the possible if not probable disadvantages of handling the next naval reductions conference independent of the Washington pact.

President Hoover has the duty imposed upon him of assuming leadership and calling a naval reduction conference under the terms of the pact. The powers have agreed to cooperate in the carrying out of that duty and there could be no question raised as to why America undertakes the task. Congress, by ratifying the Washington treaty, has given the President authority to go ahead. And it must not be forgotten that the legislative and not the executive branch of the Government is entrusted with the constitutional duty of providing for and maintaining the United States Navy.

France and Italy, as well as Great Britain and Japan, are obligated in advance to be represented at the next Washington conference. The first-named powers are under no obligation to attend a conference held independently of the Washington pact. Both refused to attend the Geneva tripartite conference called by Mr. Coolidge. Neither will attend the next conference unless obligated to do so or unless suitable bargains can be made in advance.

America will be in a strategic position at the next Washington conference because of the fact that the five-power treaty terminates on December 31, 1936. If the United States as one of the signatory powers decides that the cause of naval reductions is not being honestly advanced. There will be an opportunity at the next conference for President Hoover to decide whether it is or is not better for America to wipe the slate clean of naval reduction agreements and leave each nation free to satisfy its own naval requirements. The President doubtless will prefer this latter course if, by that time, it becomes apparent that the naval powers are determined to make a sham of the naval reductions question or utilize it merely for their own ends and at the expense of the United States. Under these circumstances America will have something to bargain with in making the effort to put real naval reduction on the map.

Nothing will be gained by trying to bring about a rump international naval reduction conference in advance of the scheduled Washington meeting. A conference held in Europe, in the League of Nations atmosphere, would be viewed with suspicion in America and especially in Congress. The preliminary yardstick conference will not lose any of its importance because of the fact that it is to serve as a means of making the regularly scheduled conference at Washington a possible success.

BLACK CANYON DAM.

President Hoover has issued a proclamation putting into effect the flood-control, irrigation and power project on the Colorado River. The proclamation was the final act needed to commit the Government to expenditure of $165,000,000 for a dam in Black Canyon; but its issuance does not mean that the dam will be built without further controversy and delay. For 25 years the development of the Colorado River has been a disputed subject among the States in its basin. A division of the waters acceptable to all seven States has not yet been agreed upon, and the rights of Mexico in the stream are still a matter of unofficial negotiation.

What was described as a final conference of the lower basin States was held in Washington recently. Col. W. J. Donovan suggested a plan which renewed hope that an agreement between Arizona and California could be reached, but the delegates went home without reaching an understanding. Another "final" conference will be held at Santa Fe, N. Mex., in October. Arizona will then either ratify the compact allocating water rights to the seven States, or will appeal to the courts for an injunction to prevent construction of the dam. In that event the case would be carried to the Supreme Court, and, unless the Government wished to risk the loss involved in an adverse decision, development of the Colorado would be indefinitely delayed.

It would be a mistake to begin actual construction before every legal question involved has been settled. The Reclamation Bureau estimates that specifications on which to base the call for bids will not be completed before October. Even though Arizona should find itself satisfied with the concessions of California by that time, still another controversy is in the offing. The bill authorizes the Secretary of the Interior to call for three different classes of bids on the power project. The Government may build the power plant and lease it; it may operate the plant itself, selling power wholesale; or it may permit private concerns to construct and operate the plant by granting them water rights at the dam. Secretary Wilbur has announced that he will first ask for bids for private construction and operation. This plan is opposed by Representative Swing, of California, coauthor of the bill, on the theory that several million dollars could be saved if the dam and the power plant were built at the same time and by the same agency. The question as to who shall build and operate the plant must be answered before work on the dam can begin, since the bill provides that repayment of the entire cost to the Government must be guaranteed by power contracts.

Aside from these many difficulties the Colorado River project, in its general aspect, concerns the entire country. President Hoover calls attention to the fact that it is the "most extensive action ever taken by a group of States under the provisions of the Constitution permitting compact between States." "It opens the avenue," he said, "for some hope of the settlement of other regional questions as between the States rather than the imposition of these problems on the Federal Government." The Colorado River compact may set a precedent which will be influential in determining many future interstate controversies. It involves the question as to whether Congress and the legislatures of six States may dictate to another State on such an important issue as water rights. If Arizona adheres to the compact, there will be no occasion to deal with this question, but if not, it should have the fullest consideration of the highest court in the country.

NEW SHIPS.

In the old days, when the Yankee skippers sailed their ships to foreign ports, the United States stood supreme as a maritime power. American skippers were daring seamen. Their ships were the speediest afloat. Because the ships were speedy and their masters competent to sail in weather that made others reef their sails, the Yankee clippers faced little competition. They were the preferred vessels. Today, the United States is endeavoring to reestablish her merchant marine and it is generally recognized that the factors that built supremacy in an earlier day must be duplicated if dominance is to be won today.

The United States Lines recently were transferred by the Government to private control and it is around the former Shipping Board vessels as a nucleus that the new American merchant marine will be built. Under the terms of the contract of sale, the new United States Lines agreed to build new vessels the equal of any that sail the Atlantic, and in April a committee of design was created to plan for two new ships. It was recently announced that plans and models of two new vessels have been completed, and that the models are to be tested in the ship model testing basin at the navy yard.

The new vessels will be similar in design to the Leviathan, flagship of the United States Lines, but their lines will be refined to give them the speed necessary to compete with the Bremen and the Europa which are expected to be the speediest vessels on the Atlantic. It is believed that the new vessels of the United States Lines will make 27 knots or better as compared with the 26 1/2 knots of the Bremen and the Europa. The new vessels will be of about 50,000 gross tons each which, while slightly under the tonnage of the Leviathan and the Majestic, will enable them to equal or surpass the earning power of the two older ships in view of the fact that modern ship building methods make possible big savings in weight without sacrifice of structural strength. They will range from 900 to 1,000 feet in length with a beam somewhat narrower than that of the Leviathan, and they will be built to meet and even exceed the most stringent regulations for safety of life at sea. Their keels are to be laid in February, and they will cost, completed, between $50,000,000 and $60,000,000.

The American merchant marine has been reduced to such a sorry state that it is gratifying to witness signs of activity that promise to lead to its resuscitation. It is economically vital that there be American bottoms to carry American exports and passengers and it is highly important to the national defense that there be created an efficient, well-rounded merchant marine. The new owners of the United States Lines are proving that their promise to lead the way to maritime prominence was not idle. The designing and building of the new vessels will be watched by the American people, not as an interesting commercial development, but as a matter of national importance.

"FORD" HOMES.

To suppose that the real estate men of the country would remain complacent and docile while the inhabitants of American cities flocked into apartment houses with increasing rapidity would be to display gross ignorance of the nature of a real estate man. It is evident that they have a ready answer for the "cliff-dwelling" public and the builders of gigantic apartment hotels. That answer is mass production of homes.

The National Association of Real Estate Boards is holding its annual convention in Boston. Delegates to the opening session were treated to a verbal picture of the home production business of the future by Edward A. Filene. He foresees that the principle of mass production, which has proved so successful in other fields, will be applied to home building. Houses will be manufactured mostly by machinery as are automobiles. Centralized factories will turn out houses in standard sizes and shapes. Gigantic companies will control the entire process from cutting the timber to hanging the paper in the finished home. It is not quite certain whether or not the sales talk will be machine made also.

Mass production has materially reduced the price of hundreds of commodities. Why can not the principle be applied to real estate prices? Such an argument is appealing until one stops to vision a city of the future stocked with homes of uniform size and shape. Americans are willing that their typewriters, pocket knives and even their automobiles should conform to definite types. But the thought of a home identical to that of one's neighbor and one's neighbor's neighbor is as painful as the idea of standardized clothes for women. If the future inhabitants of this mass-production land retain any sense of the esthetic they will rebel at the idea of living in a "Ford" or a "Buick," or a "Packard" home.

The import duty on frozen or otherwise prepared or preserved eggs has been raised from 6 to 7 1/2 cents a pound. Restaurant breakfasters are eagerly awaiting the effect.

A process server in the United States Marshal's office in Chicago believes in dressing the part. When he has to serve a warrant upon a millionaire he wears a cutaway, and when he has to serve a warrant on a gangster he dresses like a tough. So far he has not been called on to serve a warrant upon the proprietor of a Turkish bath.

SPIRITS OF '76

By BEVERLY SMITH.
In the New York Herald Tribune.

In most great political and religious controversies the disputants eagerly invoke the authority of the Founding Fathers. The wets, in the current prohibition struggle, frequently point with pride to the stills, brew vats and wine presses of the Revolutionary heroes. Why have not the dries responded by calling upon the name of Dr. Benjamin Rush, of Philadelphia?

Dr. Rush was one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence. He was a member of the convention which ratified the Federal Constitution in 1787. He was the most celebrated American physician of his day. In 1776, as a surgeon general to the forces, he wrote an official treatise for the troops, in which he condemned the use of spirits. In 1785 he wrote his essay, "The Effect of Ardent Spirits on the Human Body and Mind."

For ardent spirits, or distilled liquors, Dr. Rush has no good word.

"Were it possible for me to speak in a voice loud enough to be heard from the River St. Croix to the remotest shores of the Mississippi," he exclaims, "I would say: Friends and fellow citizens: Avoid the habitual use of those two seducing liquors, grog and toddy, whether they be made with brandy, rum, gin, whisky, or what is called cherry bounce!"

If Dr. Rush had stopped there, he might even today be given honorable mention by Bishop Cannon. But he went on to discuss wines and beers, placing them in an entirely different category.

"Fermented liquors," he wrote, "contain so little spirit that they can seldom be drunken in sufficient quantities to produce intoxication without exciting a disrelish to their taste, or pain from their distending the stomach. They are, moreover, when taken in moderate quantity, generally innocent, and often have a friendly effect upon health and life."

In his condemnation of ardent spirits he gives a long and painstaking list of the symptoms of overindulgence. Among these he records: "Unusual garrulity," "unusual silence," "captiousness," "uncommon good humor, and an insipid smirking, or laugh," "profane swearing," "a disclosure of their own or other people's secrets," "a rude disposition to tell others their faults," "a clipping of words," and finally, "fighting—a black eye or a swollen nose often mark this grade of drunkenness."

In one of the results of drinking which he lists, he apparently displayed less than his usual scientific skepticism.

"Dr. Haller," he writes, "relates the case of a notorious drunkard having been suddenly destroyed in consequence of his breath accidentally taking fire by coming into contact with the flame of a candle."

Returning to a discussion of fermented drinks, he praises wine as "cordial and nourishing."

"The peasants of France, who drink them in large quantities, are a sober and healthy body of people. Unlike ardent spirits, wines generally inspire cheerfulness and good humor. It is to be lamented that the grape has not been sufficiently cultivated in our country to afford wines for our citizens."

Dr. Rush then gives receipts for making ciders, malt liquors and wines. He even recommends these drinks to persons suddenly "giving up the use of distilled liquors."

For a hundred years this shrewd and good-humored essay was called "The A B C of Temperance reform." If the good Dr. Rush were to return today he would be denounced as a "wringing wet" by the Antislavery League.

He Turns the Other Cheek.

He went the latter one better—one z better—and the former was nowhere in lastness beside him. Just what awards and decorations attach to being last in a phone book has never been made clear. But there must be some advantage. One man changed his name from Zyzk to Zzyzz in an effort to clinch the place. How vain, indeed, are human wishes. For along came Mr. Zzyzz to ruin Mr. Zyzk's (or Zyz's) ambition.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

HE HAD suffered pain and knew all his friends were going through. He had known long weeks of dread. Toeing on a sleepless bed. He had watched that narrow hall. For a friend to come to call. So he journeyed from his way. Just a cheery word to say. Stopped from time to time to see. What the sufferer's need might be. Others left him there alone. Pain like that they'd never known. Only those who've lonely been. Know what loneliness can mean. Sympathy is but a word. Save by memories it's stirred. Who would share another's woe. Must lie hurt and anguish know. (Copyright, 1929.)

To Discover How Wise You Are, Compare Yourself With the Idiot.

By ROBERT QUILEN.

IDIOT reveals itself in two ways. The idiot acts without definite purpose or intention, and he is unable to foresee the consequences of his acts.

If you would adopt a standard of measurement to determine the degree of your intelligence, the idiot must represent zero and the degree of your intelligence must be the degree of your superiority to him.

But a standard of measurement must have two extremes—an irreducible minimum and an ultimate maximum—and if the idiot represents one extreme, the other must be represented by an imaginary perfection of wisdom.

With these two extremes established for the purpose of contrast, you have only to compare your action in given circumstances to the probable actions of the idiot and the wise man, and lo! the degree of your wit stands revealed. It is as easy as that.

Consider, for example, the idiot in an automobile. Without purpose or definite intention, he drives madly down a crowded thoroughfare, wholly indifferent to his own safety or that of others because he is incapable of realizing that his folly endangers anybody. He seems to invite disaster, but his recklessness is without purpose. He intends no evil; he intends nothing. He merely steps on the gas and holds the wheel, indifferent to death because he doesn't know he is tempting death.

That is one extreme. That is zero. The wise man, aware of every danger to himself and others, drives slowly and carefully where disaster lurks; and if he drives fast where fast driving is dangerous, it is because he has a definite purpose and the advantage to be gained is sufficient to justify the risk.

With these two extremes established, you can examine your own driving and the purpose or lack of purpose which inspires it, and thus discover in what degree you rank above the idiot.

And thus, also, you can grade every act of your ordinary life and by grading the acts grade yourself.

Every act and word has an effect. Do you plan the effect and thus obtain it purposefully? Do you realize, when you speak or act, just what the consequence will be?

The idiot does not. The wise man does. Somewhere between these two you must establish yourself.

To speak and act half of the time without purpose and without realization of what the effect will be is to prove yourself a half-wit.

It is a simple rule, easily applied, and should be of interest in a world addicted to intelligence tests.

(Copyright, 1929.)

THE ONCE OVER

By H. L. PHILLIPS.

No. 3—Florence Ziegfeld.

Q. Mr. Ziegfeld, you are the all-American indorser, are you not?

A. If I am I have been wasting a lot of ink.

Q. Is there any nationally known product which you have not indorsed?

A. Nothing that comes to mind at the moment. I've indorsed about everything in the country except George White's Scandals, the income tax and the electric chair.

Q. Isn't it quite a strain to testify for so many things?

A. Well, it is hard on a beginner, but one gets used to it. A few years ago when I first began indorsing products I couldn't turn out more than one or two testimonials a day. Now I can shake out a half-dozen in five minutes' notice. It's a system.

Q. I see you have indorsed the Blue Rajah cigarette.

A. That's one of 'em, yes. I am proud to say that I consider the Blue Rajah cigarette makes shaving easier, softens the beard and leaves the skin feeling clear, cool and comfortable. I rub just a little on each cheek and—

Q. You're thinking of Woodett's shaving cream.

A. Maybe you're right.

Q. By the way, what was it you said in indorsing Woodett's shaving cream?

A. I said it removes tartar, strengthens the gums, keeps away mouth germs and kills halitosis. I know of no other preparation that—

Q. You're mixed up again, Mr. Ziegfeld.

A. Well, you'll have to pardon it; I'm a very busy man.

Q. I saw an advertisement last night in which you also indorsed Speevick balloon tires, did I not?

A. Ah, yes, indeed. I am delighted to state that for aiding indigestion and helping the tired business man fight off the ailments of middle age the Speevick balloon tire is without an equal. I always carry a little box of them in my grip when I am away on the road.

Q. And I observe, also, an indorsement under your photograph and signature of Whattiss hennas for beautifying the hair.

A. Did I indorse that?

Q. Don't you know you did?

A. I never could be sure without looking up the check.

Q. Getting down to business, I am here to see if I can get you to say a word for the B. &amp; K. electric icebox.

A. For how much?

Q. Would $5,000 interest you?

A. Not ordinarily, but this is a dull day. You may say to the American people that I believe the B. &amp; K. electric superior to any car I have ever driven. It contains no nicotine, gives hair that luxurious look, doesn't discolor the teeth and will give three times the mileage of any other complexion cream. I heat my home with a B. &amp; K. and have never been sick in my life. (See, etc.)

FAMOUS HOUSE.

The old brick house at Fifth avenue and Ninth street, which was once the residence of Washington Irving and also of Mark Twain, is shortly to be turned into a bank, says the New York Herald Tribune. "This news will perhaps come as a shock to those who are tender of shrines and monuments, but instead of deploring the metamorphosis they should rather admire what is really, under the circumstances, a pretty piece of adjustment for an old residence. For with all lower Fifth avenue building up in skyscraper apartments, there was no future for it there in being just a house; more than that, it was worth its very life. The Mark Twain house has seen all its old neighbors go, one by one. It is the last. Better be a bank than only a memory—and a brief memory at that."

The change will leave a good deal on the credit side of sentiment. The old house with its dark red brick, its raised-eyebrow windows, its high stoop, will look pretty much as always; there will still be the memorial tablet on the Ninth street side, and the bank intends to preserve as much as possible the appearance and atmosphere of the old interior. This is all, but there still seems lacking some inevitable comment on the story of a bank in Mark Twain's house; if he were alive to hear the news we would know just what it is.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

American People Welcomes the Ending of "Free Entry" Privileges, But the New Regulations Should Be Applied With Discretion.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Because a few congressmen abused the privilege of "free entry" granted by the customs service, officials of the Treasury Department decided to abolish all privileges connected with the inspection of special privilege in the customs tilling the holder to receive immediate attention in the inspection of his baggage are issued, and as a result each person has to await his turn. The American people welcome the elimination of special privilege in the customs service, but the manner in which the new ruling is being applied in New York is nothing short of ridiculous.

Three weeks ago the customs officials refused to expedite the inspection of baggage belonging to an elderly woman who had broken her leg on the voyage from Bermuda. The woman had to leave her baggage behind in going to the hospital. This one case might have been overlooked, but last Friday the procedure was repeated. Miss Hilda Olesed, of Hartford, Conn., one of those injured in the flashlight explosion on the Cunard ship had to be taken to a hospital. But the customs officials refused to give her any special attention and her baggage had to be sent to the appraiser's store to be held until her release.

The Treasury Department ruling provides that only the collector or assistant collector of customs may issue expedite orders in case of emergency. When neither of these gentlemen is present, distressed passengers are subjected to outrageous inconvenience. It appears that the department is leaning backward in an effort to be fair, and is inflicting unnecessary hardships on unfortunate travelers. Something ought to be done about it.

GEORGE L. SCOTT.

Special Summer Uniforms for Police Would Add to Their Comfort and Increase Their Efficiency; Until It Is Adopted, Police Should Be Required to Shed Their Coats.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I have recently returned from a rather extensive motor trip through the South, where I noticed, in many communities, that the police were permitted to be on duty sans coats. In the name of common sense, why should not Washington police be permitted to shed their coats?

It is my opinion that a special summer uniform of white or light colored cotton should be adopted for the local police. They are expected to patrol their beats conscientiously beneath the blistering sun, or stand for hours directing traffic in heat-baked intersections, and they are entitled to be permitted to wear cool clothing. The present summer uniforms may be reasonably cool, but they are not made of "tropical" cloth, whereas almost every one who does not have to wear a uniform has adopted such cloth for his summer clothing.

Until a special, light-weight summer uniform is adopted, Washington police should be not only permitted but even required to shed their coats. If a uniform shirt, collar and tie were prescribed the appearance of the force would not suffer and its efficiency would be increased. TAXPAYER.

It Is All Very Well to Say, as Does Gov. Roosevelt, That Individuals do Not Have the Right to Be Sick, But the Primary Need Is to Put the Means for Keeping Well Within the Reach of All.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In his address at the Saratoga Reservation Gov. Roosevelt of New York says that in the future it will be recognized that the individual has no right to be sick. He predicted gradual development of the idea that the State has a right, not just a duty, to see to it that the health of its citizens is brought up to a higher level.

It is all very well to talk in this manner, but a governor appears to assume that some people want to be sick. This, of course, is an unfounded premise. There is no more general desire among all people than to be healthy. Few would neglect their health, if able to do otherwise. As soon as some agency makes medical care, not just treatment after a person is sick, available to all the people, and reduces the price of hospital treatment to within reach of all, the State will not have a difficult job "forcing" its citizens to keep well. The first need is to put the means of keeping well within the reach of every one. It will not then be difficult to apply general health requirements.

CARTER S. GEORGESON.

Embassy Liquor.
To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It is encouraging to see Ambassador Davies abiding by the laws of his country even though he is in a foreign land. The State Department has announced that Mr. Davies is exercising a personal prerogative. The ambassador himself says that he did not violate the prohibition law at home and he sees no reason why he should serve liquor abroad. His good sense is commendable.

It is hard to recognize any consistency in the policy which forbids liquor to Americans at home and allows it to flow freely at American embassies abroad. Ambassadors in a foreign land abide by the laws of their own country, and not by the laws of the nation they are in. Why should an exception be made of the prohibition law? As long as prohibition is in force in this country diplomatic appointees abroad should be required to respect it.

HARVEY L. KRAIGNER.

The Weed Menace.
To the Editor of The Post—Sir: May I plead through your paper that all weeds on vacant lots be cut before they seed. Look on vacant lots on Connecticut avenue and Sixteenth street as well as others and you will see the reason.

Have we no legislation covering this subject? No one has the right to allow weeds to grow on his property and allow them to go to seed and menace others. Who is responsible for the present condition of things?

White House Garden Party Is Postponed

Affair for Disabled Veterans Will Be Held Today if Weather Permits.

By JEAN ELIOT.

THE White House garden party for the disabled veterans, which was to have been held yesterday afternoon, was "called on account of wet grounds" and will be held today, weather permitting.

Up until 2 o'clock the report at the White House was "Yes, the garden party will be held if it doesn't rain." So, when the sun came out bright and clear just about the time for the fête to begin, little knots of guests began assembling, only to be told that the party had been postponed.

Word had, of course, been sent to the various hospitals in Washington and its environs, so that transportation arrangements could be made for today instead of yesterday. And presumably the official guests had been notified. But members of various veterans' groups were on hand, and a group of newspaper women, arriving breathless and in best bib and tucker, found a delegation from the G. A. R. at the east gate looking disconsolate.

They were cheerful old boys, however, and one remarked amiably that he didn't mind being on the outside looking in, since it was a good day to acquire a bit of sun tan.

Dr. E. M. Hopkins, president of Dartmouth College, and Mrs. Hopkins, who have been guests of the President and Mrs. Hoover, left town yesterday, but the little White House party still includes Mrs. Hoover's sister, Mrs. J. H. Large, and her son and daughter, Mr. Delano Large and Miss Janet Large.

The President and Mrs. Hoover had their dinner guests at the White House last evening Mr. George Wickersham and Admiral and Mrs. David Sellers.

Capital Hopes De Sibour Will Fly to Washington.

Washingtonians are wondering whether Vicomte and Vicomtesse de Sibour will not come a-visiting to the Capital in the course of their round-the-world tour in their motor car.

They have recently arrived in New York, landing at Roosevelt Field after a leisurely cross-country flight from Chicago, where the vicomte lived as a child. And the young vicomte has cousins in Washington. Mr. J. Henri de Sibour, Jr., and Mr. Blaise de Sibour, the son-in-law and daughter of Mr. R. Gordon Selridge, American-born owner of London's great department store, Vicomte and Vicomtesse de Sibour, left London last September and, flying eastward, crossed France and Spain. Then skirting the Mediterranean by way of the northern coast of Africa they flew to Baghdad on to Beers through Persia and India to Calcutta, thence to Bangkok and across Indo-China to Saigon.

It had been their intention to fly on to Peking, but after several weeks of big game hunting in the jungles of Indo-China they received word of the serious illness of the vicomte's father and they decided to return at once to Paris. However, before they could start they received word of his death and again changed their plans. Taking the tiny plane as luggage, they boarded a ship for Shanghai, and then changed to the President Taft for Seattle, landing on American soil June 3.

Both the vicomte and his wife are seasoned pilots and Vicomte de Sibour flew for France during the war. Soon they propose to load the little plane on shipboard again, sailing on July 4 on the De Grasse for France. They have kept careful account of the cost of airplane travel, which Vicomte de Sibour contends is cheaper in a small sport plane than any other form of transportation.

Pan-American Head Nicaraguan Envoy's Host.

The Director General of the Pan-American Union, Dr. R. R. Boylston, entertained at luncheon yesterday at the Pan-American Annex in honor of the Minister of Nicaragua, Señor Dr. Juan B. Sacasa.

The guests were the Secretary of State, Mr. Henry L. Stimson; the Secretary of the Navy, Mr. Charles F. Adams; the Secretary of Labor, Mr. James John Davis; the secretaries to the President, Mr. George Akerson, Mr. Lawrence Richey and Mr. Frank Strother; the Undersecretary of State, Mr. Joseph P. Cotton; the Assistant Secretary of State, Mr. Francis White; Brig. Gen. Frank Rose McCoy, U. S. A.; Senator Dr. Evaristo Carazo, Counselor of the Legation of Nicaragua; Dr. Dana G. Munro, chief of the Latin-American division of the Department of State; Mr. J. Reuben Clark, Jr., formerly Undersecretary of State, and Dr. Eusebio Quijón, assistant director of the Pan-American Union.

Brig. Gen. and Mrs. David L. Brainard entertained at dinner last evening at the Chevy Chase Club in honor of

In Washington for the Summer

MRS. RICHARD HUME, formerly Miss Charlotte Hanna, who is spending most of the summer at her home in Wesley Heights, making occasional week-end trips to Rehoboth Beach, Del.

The Spanish Ambassador and Senora de Padilla and their daughters, Senorita Rosa Padilla and Senorita Maria Padilla. The other guests were Signor Leonardo Vittielli, First Secretary of the Italian Embassy; Col. Campbell Hodges, Lieut. Comdr. F. B. MacFarlane and Lieut. Comdr. F. L. Love.

The Assistant Secretary of the Navy, Mr. Ernest L. Johnson, is on his way to Honolulu, Hawaii, aboard the S. S. Malolo. He is on duty at the Presidio in San Francisco. Mrs. Nevelle spends a great deal of her time in Peiping and is planning to sail for China again at the end of August.

The largest group of Washington travelers that has figured in one sailing for Europe this year left last midnight on the S. S. Berengaria, bound for Cherbourg and Southampton. In the capacity passenger list were the following from Washington: Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Polk, Mr. James F. Polk, Miss Alice P. Polk, Miss Elizabeth S. Polk and Mr. Frank L. Polk. Mr. Polk was the head of the delegation to the peace conference in Paris. Others were Mr. F. Edward Scooby, former Director of the Mint, and Mrs. Scooby.

Mr. and Mrs. Woodbury Blair have arrived in Newport after passing some time in New York en route, and have opened their summer home, Beach-nom.

Maj. Gen. Enoch H. Crowder, retired, former Ambassador to Cuba, has returned to Washington from Chicago, and is again at the Mayflower.

Former Gov. Ralph O. Brewster, of Maine, has arrived at the Carlton, where he will stay several days.

Senator Hastings Goes To Home in Delaware.

Senator D. O. Hastings, who has been living at the Wardman Park Hotel, has gone to his home in Delaware for the summer.

Representative and Mrs. Merin Hull, their daughter, Miss Lois Hull, and their niece, Miss Helen Hull Jones, of 1488 Newton street, have started by motor for Black River Falls, Wis. Representative Hull will attend the Wisconsin State editors' convention in Montana in July, and go from there to visit his son, Mr. Perry Miller Hull, in San Francisco.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Marvin Jones will drive to Wisconsin to pick up their daughter before moving into their new home at 3808 Garrison street.

Mr. Lawrence R. Lee, with his daughter, Miss Frances McD. Lee, and his son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Henry Lee, of Baltimore, have sailed for Europe to pass the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey Parker, who have been passing the spring and early summer at the Wardman Park Hotel, will start by motor today for Wake-

Three Colorful Weddings Mark Day in Capital

Miss Margaret Carter Becomes Bride of Mr. Bannerman.

Miss Margaret Carter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Hastings Alleyne Carter, was married yesterday afternoon to Mr. David Boyce Bannerman, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. David Boyce Bannerman, of Elizabeth, N. J. The bridegroom's and bride's fathers were classmates at Princeton University and the two families have been friends for years. Mr. Bannerman is also a Princeton graduate and has just completed a postgraduate course at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

The wedding took place in St. Thomas' Church, the rector, the Rev. Dr. C. Ernest Smith, officiating. The picturesque Gothic church was decorated with summer flowers. Following the ceremony there was a small reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Carter at 1225 Sixteenth street.

Miss Carter was given in marriage by her father and had her sister, Miss Frances Carter, as maid of honor. There were four bridesmaids, Miss Elizabeth Truax, of Summit, N. J.; Miss Peggy Taylor, of Madison, N. J.; Miss Marjorie Ogden, of Milwaukee, and Miss Peggy Bannerman, sister of the bridegroom.

The bride's gown was of ivory satin, untrimmed and made with a tight-fitting bodice, a full skirt, cut long, and long close sleeves. There was a court train of satin over which fell a voluminous veil of tulle. She carried bride roses and lilies of the valley.

The attendants wore organdy frocks, with close-fitting bodices, the full skirts dipping in the back. The maid of honor's costume was of yellow organdy, two of the bridesmaids were gowned in orchid and the other two in a soft shade of green. They all wore horsehair hals to match their frocks and carried bouquets of various-colored flowers.

Mr. Charles Bannerman was best man for his brother, and the group of ushers included Raymond, the bride's brother, the bride's brother, Joseph Gibson, of Philadelphia; Mr. Donald Liddell, of Baltimore; Mr. Robert Schall, of Greensburg, Pa., and Mr. Ashley Wright, of Washington.

Mr. and Mrs. David Boyce Bannerman came from the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bannerman, a sister of the bridegroom, and a number of other relatives. Mr. and Mrs. Bannerman will make their home in Bath, Me.

Mr. Charles G. Smith, Jr. Weds Miss Dorothy Duff.

Another pretty wedding took place yesterday when Miss Dorothy Mae Duff, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Cook, of Georgetown, to Mr. F. Joseph Donohue, son of Mr. and Mrs. James J. Donohue, of Lynn, Mass., was solemnized yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception at Catholic University.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, and she wore a gown of ivory satin fashioned on princess lines, with long tight sleeves and a yoke of rose point lace. The skirt was long in front and longer in the back, forming a semi-train. The tulle veil fell over the train from a coronet of pearls framing the bride's face. She carried a bouquet of white orchids.

The matron of honor was Mrs. J. Maynard Magruder, who wore a costume of chartreuse chiffon, fashioned with a light bodice, and a long full skirt. Her large chapeau straw hat was faced with cream lace and trimmed with orchid and chartreuse satin streamers. She carried a bouquet of purple orchids and cream roses.

The best man was Mr. Martin J. Cook, brother of the bride, and the ushers were Mr. J. Maynard Magruder, Mr. Joseph Connolly, Mr. James B. Connolly, of Philadelphia; Mr. Frank J. Dolansky, Jr., of Lynn, Mass., and Mr. F. Cedmus Jamrell.

Miss Williams Becomes Bride Of Mr. Tucker

Capital Residents Motor to Culpeper, Va., for Ceremony.

Many Washingtonians motored to Culpeper, Va., yesterday to attend the wedding of Miss Mary Jane Williams and Representative Henry St. George Tucker, which took place at Redwood, the Colonial mansion which has been the home of the bride's family for generations. A group of ladies from the Louise Home, of which Miss Williams was the presiding genius for fourteen years, were among the guests. Representative Tucker having arranged transportation by bus for all of the residents of the home who were able to attend the wedding.

The ceremony at 4 o'clock was performed by the Right Rev. Beverly Tucker, Bishop of Southern Virginia, who is a cousin of Representative Tucker, assisted by the Rev. Kenney John Hammond. Miss Williams was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Pendleton Long Williams. Miss Gertrude Slaughter was maid of honor and Mr. John Randolph Tucker, of Richmond, Va., best man.

The bride wore a simple gown of white chiffon, trimmed with beautiful old lace, and wore a becoming white hat. She carried a bouquet of bride roses and lilies of the valley. Miss Slaughter's gown was of pink georgette and she carried yellow roses, shading to pink.

The ceremony was in the garden under century-old trees and immediately afterward there was an informal reception.

Among the guests were Mr. Charles B. Payne, of Culpeper; Mrs. L. E. McCarty, of Washington; Miss Frances Gainer, Mrs. Katherine Thompson, Miss Myrtle Bruce and Miss Evelyn Bruce, of South Boston, Va.; Mrs. Henry Walton, of Culpeper; Mrs. Philip Power, of Washington; Miss Jennie Slaughter, Miss Katherine Jennings, Miss Jacqueline Bicken and Miss Crimora Waite.

For her traveling costume the bride wore an ensemble of dark blue crepe, with a chic hat to match. Representative Tucker and Mrs. Tucker will make their home in Lexington, Va.

The bride is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Morton Williams, of Culpeper. She has lived in Washington several years. She is a member of the Colonial Dames, the Daughters of the American Revolution and the Daughters of the Confederacy.

Representative Tucker has been twice married and is twice a widower. He has several sons and daughters and eight grandchildren.

SHIP AND 60 CADETS NOW BELIEVED LOST

Remote Island's Natives Say They Saw Danish Sailing Craft Wrecked.

SEARCH IS ABANDONED

Copenhagen, June 26 (U.P.)—Hope for the safety of the great sailing ship Kobenhavn, with 60 Danish cadets aboard, was abandoned officially tonight when the government was notified that the missing vessel had been seen in wreckage on the Island of Tristan da Cunha, far in the South Atlantic.

Capt. Christensen, of the steamship Mexico, informed his company's office here by radio that he had arrived at Tristan da Cunha, one of the most remote islands of the world, and that the natives had told him of seeing the Kobenhavn wrecked January 21. The natives said the sailing ship was wrecked on the northwest coast of the island. Capt. Christensen showed them a photograph of the Kobenhavn and an inhabitant of the island said he recognized a sailor aboard the vessel.

Fog made the natives afraid to go out in lifeboats to aid the wrecked vessel, the captain reported. They watched, however, while the Kobenhavn drifted helplessly in a southerly direction and disappeared.

Capt. Christensen announced that he was returning to Copenhagen, as he believed there was no chance of finding the vessel.

The Kobenhavn, one of the largest sailing ships in the world, was en route from South America to Copenhagen. It was due the middle of last winter, but failed to arrive. Authorities expressed no anxiety at that time, because they granted the ship a leeway of at least 30 days.

When the 30 days had elapsed a wide search was started, centering around the southern tip of Africa, where it was known the Kobenhavn had been seen. Crews were scarce, but the fruitless search continued, until the message was received from Capt. Christensen today.

There were a number of cadets aboard who came from prominent Danish families.

A reception followed the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents. Mrs. Cook, mother of the bride, wore a gown of powder-blue georgette over satin, with a horsehair hat to match, and Mrs. Donohue wore orchid chiffon with a hat to match.

After the reception Mr. and Mrs. Donohue started on a motor trip along the North Shore and to Quebec, stopping at Lynn, Mass., where Mr. Donohue will act on the reception committee for the Tercentenary Celebration of the founding of Lynn. The bride will travel in a dark blue chiffon ensemble with an eggshell blouse and dark blue accessories. On their return to Washington they will be at home at the Chastleton.

Mr. and Mrs. William W. Rapley will go to Philadelphia for July 4, and will be guests of the latter's mother, Mrs. Henry H. Lineaweaver and Mr. Lineaweaver. Mrs. Rapley's sister, Miss Sally Huntress, who has been her guest here for some time, will return to Philadelphia with them.

Lieut. Comdr. Frederic W. Neilson and Mrs. Neilson (the former Mrs. Jackson Alsop) and her two children, will leave July 6 for New York. From there for some time, will return to the West Coast, where Comdr. Neilson will be stationed for two years.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Davies will leave town soon to visit their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Davies, in Asheville, N. C., after which they will go to Europe for the summer.

Comdr. and Mrs. Harry Knauss, who have been in Newport for several years, while he was instructor at the Naval War College, have come to Washington and have taken a house at 3434 Thirtieth street. Comdr. Knauss will be on duty here. Mrs. Knauss was Miss Catherine Dickman, daughter of the late Gen. Dickman.

Engagement Is Announced
Of Miss Mildred Walker.
Mr. and Mrs. Benson Walker have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Mildred Lee Walker, to Mr. Henry Granville Lee, son of Mrs. Henry Albert Lee, of this city. The wedding will take place some time during the late summer.

Mr. E. T. Wallis entertained a company of twelve at dinner last night at the Plaza Desauville at the Wardman Park Hotel.

Mrs. T. E. DeWitt Veeder, who has been at Warm Springs, Ga., has returned to Washington and is at the Powhatan Hotel for the present. With her are her daughters, Miss Aminta Veeder and Miss Anne Veeder.

Miss Arta Fugmann, of Copenhagen, Denmark, who has been studying at Columbia University in New York for two years, is with her father, Mr. Albert Fugmann here. They have been to Buffalo and Chicago and Miss Fugmann will return to Denmark with her father, sailing July 6. Her engagement was announced recently to Dr. Anton Srokter Thomsen, of Copenhagen. Mr. Fugmann and Miss Fugmann are at the Mayflower while in Washington.

Women's Legion to Give Party at Marine Barracks.

One of the interesting parties of the summer season will be given tomorrow evening at the Marine Barracks by the American Women's Legion. It is to be a benefit card party and proceeds will go toward the work of the American Women's Legion in aiding veterans of the World War. The Marine Band will give a concert early in the evening on the lawn and refreshments will be served.

Invited to be guests of honor are Gen. Wendell C. Neville, Gen. and Mrs. Frank T. Hines, Admiral and Mrs. Charles F. Hughes, Admiral and Mrs. Frederick C. Billard and Miss Margaret H. ## LUTHERANS' STRIDES IN AMERICA PRAISED Denmark's King Attends the Opening of World Convention at Copenhagen.

U. S. CITIZEN PRESIDES

Copenhagen, June 26 (A.P.)—Thousands of Lutherans from all parts of the world, in the presence of King Christian of Denmark, today began the first session of a nine-day Lutheran world convention.

Archbishop Nathan Soderblom, of Upsala, Sweden, in an interview emphasized the importance of American initiative in bringing about the convention. He said the Lutheran churches in North America were among the first to aid Europe in the postwar years and from this naturally had sprung the idea of an international convention working for the cooperation of Lutherans all over the world.

Archbishop Soderblom considered the movement especially indebted to John Morehead, of New York City and Virginia, who is president of the convention.

One hundred and seventeen American divines arrived today aboard the liner President Roosevelt to attend the sessions.

Dr. J. M. Reu, professor at Wartburg Theological Seminary, Dubuque, Iowa, called attention at today's session to the quadricentennial jubilee of Martin Luther's small catechism, which for centuries has been the basis of the religious instruction of youth in Lutheran churches throughout the world.

The convention today disclosed the significance of this book in the present day and generation.

"The Gospel of Christ is the only remedy for a sin-sick world, and we Lutherans of America are not ashamed of it," said the Rev. N. C. Carlsen, of Royal, Iowa, president of the United Danish Evangelical Lutheran Church in America, this afternoon, responding to the address of welcome of Bishop Harald Oersted, Copenhagen.

"We are present here to assure the brethren of Denmark and other nations that the Lutheran Church of America is a Christ-centered church, which we feel must be characteristic of the Church of the Reformation. We preach Christ and Him crucified and resurrected as the only Saviour of man. The Lutheran Church of America is orthodox and loyal to the church of our fathers.

"The struggle between fundamentalists and modernists which is extant in most of the Protestant churches in America, shaking them to their very foundations, is practically unknown among American Lutherans. The few isolated cases which have come under observation have been but a ripple on the ocean.

"We trust that this second Lutheran world convention may contribute much to strengthen our bond of unity and increase the capacity of the church to serve for the advancement of the kingdom of God."

Ship's Clearance Refused Unless Man Surrenders

New York, June 26 (A.P.)—Officials of the Lloyd Subardo Line today were threatened with refusal of clearance papers unless a member of the engine crew of the liner Conte Grande was surrendered to customs officers, from whom he was rescued by his mates early this morning after he had been caught with a bag full of champagne.

The customs officers had arrested the man and were taking him ashore when they were attacked by other members of the engine room crew. In the free-for-all fight which followed he escaped. Two hundred bottles of champagne were found in the bilge. The Conte Grande is scheduled to sail for Europe Friday night with 1,200 passengers.

Illinois Governor Vetoes Banning Machine Guns

Springfield, Ill., June 26 (A.P.)—A bill to forbid the sale, possession or use of machine guns was vetoed today by Gov. L. L. Emmerson. The measure had the support of the police department.

In his veto message the governor pointed out that gangsters would own the machine guns outside the law, while police officers, obeying the law, would be forbidden them, and that, consequently, police officers without machine guns might be forced to fight gangsters who employed the weapons.

Labor Cabinet Majority Favors Barring Trotsky

London, June 26 (A.P.)—The majority of the cabinet members in the new Labor government was understood today to be against granting permission to enter England to Leon Trotsky, Bolshevik leader, exiled in Constantinople.

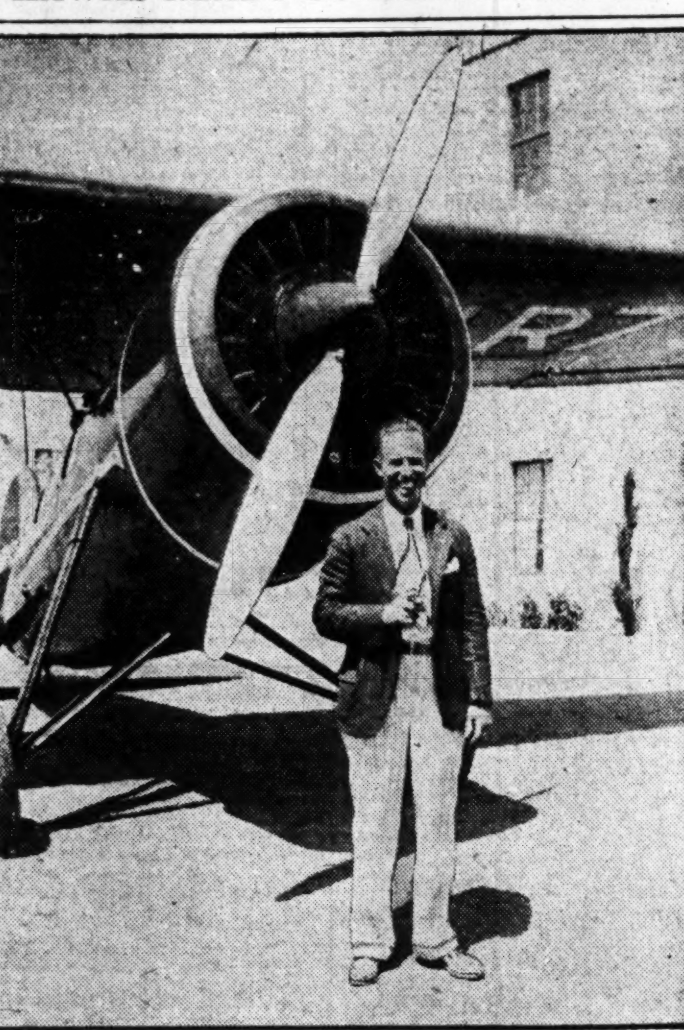

No official decision has yet been reached, but the question was put before the Labor ministers.

CONVICT EDITOR BACK TO FINISH JAIL TERM

Burns Returns to Georgia; Plea for Clemency to Be Made Governor.

WAS CAUGHT IN CHICAGO

Atlanta, June 26 (A.P.)—Robert Elmer Burns, who escaped from the Campbell County, Ga., chain gang several years ago and worked his way up from day laborer to editor of a Chicago magazine, was returned to Georgia today to complete his prison sentence.

With him was Vivian Stanley, of the Georgia prison commission. Burns on his arrival here went into conference with his attorneys, who will seek executive clemency in his behalf.

He had served only six months of his prison term on the Campbell County chain gang when he escaped in 1923. He was sentenced to from six to ten years after he and two companions were convicted of a hold-up in Atlanta in which they procured $5,000.

After his escape he went to Chicago and worked in the stock yards as a day laborer. He progressed from this position to the editorship of a magazine which was credited with earning him more than $20,000 last year.

Burns went to the Campbell County Jail in Fairburn this afternoon, accompanied by F. H. Redwine, chairman of the Campbell board of commissioners. Previously he held a brief conference in Atlanta with his attorneys, William Schley Howard and John F. Echols.

Burns displayed an honorable discharge from the United States Army to controvert what he said were reports that his war record was fictitious. He issued a statement in which he declared that his delay in waiving extradition was solely to allow him time to close up certain business matters. Attorneys have already posted at the courthouse the former 30-day notice of an appeal to the prison commission, which can not be presented to that

Man Spurned by Family Tries Suicide 7 Times

Harrisburg, Pa., June 26 (U.P.)—Disinherited by his parents in Germany because he fought with the United States Marines against his fatherland ten years ago, Frederick Schwartz, 32, now of Chicago, has made seven attempts within the last six days to end his life.

He is being held in the Dauphin County Jail, where the seventh unsuccessful suicide attempt was made today.

Schwartz's suicide attempts consisted of an effort to drown himself; an attempt to throw himself beneath the wheels of a heavy truck; swallowing of 150 grains of veronal; stabbing himself in the abdomen with a broken spoon, and three attempts to slash his wrists, using first the metal clips from shoe laces; second, bits of broken glass, and, third, a penknife.

body before the first meeting in August. They initiated an appeal for clemency would be made to Gov. Hardman within a short time.

Swanson Sees Hoover On Summer Mansion

(Associated Press.)

Senator Swanson (Democrat), Virginia, asked President Hoover yesterday to reconsider his decision against establishing a summer White House at Mount Weather, Va. The senator told the President that the cost of restoring and improving the place would be small.

The President gave no indication as to whether he would reconsider.

Drink-Crazed Man Shoots in Church

Priest Falls Flat at Altar as Four Shots Whiz Overhead.

Chicago, June 26 (U.P.)—Worshippers at mass in a west side Catholic church were terrorized today when a drink-crazed man stood in the aisle between rows of pews and fired four shots at the altar where Father Anselm Keenan was giving communion.

One of the bullets, which apparently was aimed at the priest, struck Richard Murphy, 29, a communicant, as he knelt at the altar rail. His injury is not serious, doctors said.

Charles O. Foster, the invader, aimed a fifth bullet at his head, but suffered only a scalp wound.

Father Keenan probably saved his own life when he threw himself to the floor as the bullets were fired into the sanctuary of the Our Lady of Sorrows Church.

Portugal to Pay Foreign Debt

Lisbon, June 26 (A.P.)—The minister of finance announced today that Portugal's floating debt abroad will be paid off by the end of this month. This consists principally of two advances obtained in London amounting to $500,000 ($250,000).

ALL-STEEL REFRIGERATOR

sets new standard of

DURABILITY EFFICIENCY POPULARITY

AN all-steel cabinet that cannot warp. A mechanism that is hermetically sealed, dust-proof and self-oiling. No wonder the General Electric Refrigerator has set new standards! It actually operates more quietly—it uses less current, it provides the maximum of food storage capacity.

And—important to busy housewives, it operates automatically, regulating itself so that the temperature is always within the safety zone—several degrees below 50.

These new all-steel models are remarkably low in price, beginning at $215. at the factory. They are as durable as a safe and cannot warp. They keep cold from seeping out and heat from creeping in more effectively than any previous refrigerator ever offered.

Visit our display rooms and see the new all-steel models and learn how easily they may be bought with conveniently spaced time payments.

Be sure to listen in on the General Electric Hour broadcast every Saturday Evening from 8 to 9 Eastern Standard Time over the N. B. C. network of forty-two stations.

Crime Story Given Over Air Tonight

How Arrest of Elsie Siegel's Murderer Was Effected to Be Broadcast in Detective Mystery Series.

Fans last night had to pinch themselves to realize that it was not October 1 instead of almost July 1, when atmospheric conditions are supposed to be at their worst. Distant stations, particularly those of Chicago, came in strong, and it was a highly satisfactory evening on the air.

The story of the murder of Elsie Siegel will be presented over a chain of stations, including WMAL, at 8 o'clock, when True Detective Mystery broadcast their next program.

Elsie Siegel had come from a small town to minister aid to the opium-addicted denizens of New York's Chinatown. Exactly a week after she had begun her work of reclaiming human beings from the grip of the drug, her body was found in a trunk over a chop suey restaurant on Eighth avenue. Death was apparently caused by strangulation.

How the slayer was finally apprehended and the results of this tragedy will be dramatically portrayed. Vincent Lopez and his orchestra are scheduled for a 15 minute period from WMAL at 7:15 o'clock, followed by a concert by the U. S. Marine Band, directed by Capt. Taylor Branson, from the Sylvan Theater.

The New Yorkers will be presented at 9 o'clock, after which Simone Marzucco and the Bluebird Orchestra will be broadcast.

Beatrice Belkin, soprano, and Theodore Webb, baritone, will be featured artists with a symphony orchestra under the direction of Cesare Sodero in the National Broadcasting and Concert Bureau program at 9:30 o'clock from WBC.

Hymns based on constant human need for consolation provide the theme of the Midwest Hymn Sing to be broadcast at 8 o'clock, among them "Abide With Me," "When Friends We Have in Jesus," and "I Need Thee Every Hour."

The program for the Believing Singers will be "Oh, Lucindy," "Land of the Living," "The Desert Song," "Come Back to Erin," singing violin, and "The Drum."

Unexpected versions of current Broadway hits will be broadcast in another offering of Broadway Lights at 10:30 o'clock. Featured artists will include Emily Woolley, Sue Baxter, the Land Trio and White, and a dance band under the direction of Hugo Mariani.

Christian Krien's suite of music on the themes of his native land, "In Holland," will be broadcast during the hour of Slumber Music to be heard at 10 o'clock from WRC. Ludwig Laurier directs the broadcast, which will also present the overture to "Pique Dame," von Suppe; dances from "The Bartered Bride," Smetana; "Souvenir de Baden," Komak; "Lohengrin," Wagner; and "A Forgotten Story," Bakaleinikoff.

A dance program by Jean Goldkette's Orchestra will be heard during the late water Kent program from WJZ and WJAL at 9 o'clock.

Richard Crooks, tenor, will be the guest soloist with the "World With Liberty" hour from the same station at 9:30 o'clock.

The Hawaiian Melody Boys have arranged a half-hour presentation for WJW at 8 o'clock. Helen Fenwick, contralto; James Keith, tenor, and Hazel Orr, pianist, will be broadcast in joint recital at 9 o'clock.

Fifteen minutes with the National Theater Players and the Jans Adams, impersonator, will precede a dinner concert from the Carlton Hotel at 7 o'clock, via WOL.

If June 27 is your birthday, the successful hours for you on this date are from 5 a. m. to 7 a. m., from 4 p. m. to 5 p. m., and from 9 p. m. to 10 p. m. The danger periods are from 8 a. m. to 10 a. m., and from 2 p. m. to 4 p. m.

Do not crumple up when things go wrong on this day, as a great deal of profitless contention will prevent progress being made. Unexpected difficulties can be turned to great account if met in the right spirit.

Children born June 27 will have very high ideals, great ambitions, and a true sense of honor. They will fight for right and justice, but will be more fond of peace than of strife. They will have the pluck to make many of their dreams come true.

Adaptability and resourcefulness are your two most striking characteristics.

Comfort at the Resorts

VOGUE

SINCE we join a resort colony chiefly in order to be comfortable during the uncomfortable months, it behooves us to select our resort clothes with the same motive in mind. They must be cool—cool because of fabric, their color and their lines.

At the smart resorts, the sleeveless mode has proved its practicability. In the costume at the left in the sketch, it has invaded the white jersey jacket, as well as the linen frock, both of which are distinguished in their simplicity. The dress gains fullness by mentality. You will never achieve success by slow and sure methods. You are not a plodder. You must, to merit Fortune's smiles, do something out of the ordinary and in an extraordinary manner.

You are not, by nature, affectionate and when love is bestowed on you, as it surely will, you will take it as a matter of course, and force that to maintain the flame the fire must be constantly fed with fuel. In spite of a general exterior, you, when alone, often experience fits of melancholy, and these are invariably caused by self-analysis. You have the sense to appreciate how much you fall below the 100 per cent that you, in earlier days, mapped out for yourself.

You are a good judge of human nature, and few can fool you. Although not a drudge, you have a fair for detail, and you not only visualize the end of a dream, but you can correctly anticipate all the happenings from the very beginning. You are self-reliant, and indifferent to the opinions of others, and your independence is sometimes trying to your friends.

HELEN KELLER, famous the world over as the blind, deaf and dumb girl who made good, was born this day, 1880, in Tuscumbia, Ala.

At the age of 2 Miss Keller lost her sight and hearing by a serious illness. Her education was not begun until she was 7, when she was placed in the care of Miss Anna M. Sullivan, of the Perkins Institute of the Blind.

She learned the deaf and dumb language by touch. She learned to read by the Braille system and to write on a specially constructed typewriter. When she attended college, Miss Sullivan repeated the lectures to her by touch. In 1901 she was graduated with honors from Radcliffe College.

During her college life she took part in the social activities and was very popular with her classmates. She has lectured and written extensively on her experiences and the educational possibilities for the blind. Her book, "The Story of My Life," "Optimism," "The World I Live In," "Out of the Dark."

Law Appeal Over Radio July Fourth

Appreciation Will Be Urged in Response to Wide Demand; Broadcasting From Falling Parachute Under Test.

July Fourth will see the second broadcast of the Radio Law Appreciation Committee which is headed by C. A. Earl.

The first appeal was made by over 150 stations on Memorial Day, and the second will be made by practically all the stations that made the first appeal and some 50 additional stations that were unable to arrange their programs in time for the Memorial Day address.

The first appeal came as radio's answer to President Hoover's address made at the Associated Press banquet in New York. The next is being made because more than 30,000 radio fans wrote or telegraphed their local radio stations suggesting that some definite step be taken to make law appreciation the rule in the United States rather than the exception.

It is said that the July Fourth broadcast, which will take place at 7 o'clock Eastern Standard time, will start the Nation toward a new campaign of law appreciation and that it will attempt to draw into one great non-political organization the entire law-abiding population of the country.

Experiments in broadcasting from a falling parachute are being conducted this week at Roosevelt Field by the National Broadcasting Co. If tests are successful, it is planned to relay the sensations of a 10,000 foot drop over a wide hookup of stations on the evening of the Fourth of July.

A "parachute transmitter" has been developed by R. M. Morris, NBC development engineer, which involves the use of a chin strap microphone, keeping the instrument at a correct distance from the lips no matter how the speaker's head is turned.

The transmitter is a short-wave apparatus of 500 milliwatts power, and weighs 24 pounds. The box containing all equipment is measured in inches instead of the usual feet.

Tests are being made by Charles Julianne De la Roche, a regular broadcaster from Roosevelt Field, who claims to be the youngest instructor in that dangerous field of work.

Taking another step forward in the development of good radio music, Station WJAL, at Baltimore, announces the organization as a regular broadcast feature of the WJAL Symphonic Ensemble, a group of musicians who will broadcast symphonic arrangements of popular and modern American music.

The ensemble will make its first appearance on the air on Friday evening, July 6, at 10 o'clock, and thereafter every Friday broadcast the same period, under the direction of Felice Iula, conductor.

Linden blossoms, maize and topaz, peacock, Mediterranean and Lendian blue, not to mention navy blue, are undoubtedly the popular colors of the season.

A very bright red called Richelle is a more or less repeated exception, and some pastel pink, light gray and a variety of new shades of green.

Summer styles attach considerable importance to "little nothings" or "chicisms"—which mean collars, cuffs and cuffs made of crepe georgette, organza or chiffon—with open-work so delicate that the material is almost like lace. And then very often decorated with microscopic pleats, which look as though only fairy fingers could have made them!

Margaine-Lacroix makes a very delightful type of ensemble, which has its various uses. It invariably consists of a sleeveless gown and a jacket. Illustrated today is such a one, fashioned of printed black moire and black shadow lace—with a jacket of the moire. 'Twas very nice!

"There is no doubt," said Blunt, "that the masculine sweet tooth is steadily growing sweeter. If we could take a census of the candy in consumers' hands at this moment, we would find growing sweet. ## INTERPRETS the MODE

A delightful printed black noire frock, trimmed in black lace, with a black moire jacket. Courtesy of Margaine-Lacroix, Paris).

As to color, the tendency is to use somewhat brighter shades for the very young miss than for her older sister. Lavender, for instance, shows a great deal of brilliant red, effectively combined with white.

As for silhouette, if the young girl is not yet ready for the curves, which are beginning to play a more and more important role in the mode, the modulations called for are nevertheless not so very pronounced.

Summer styles attach considerable importance to "little nothings" or "chicisms"—which mean collars, cuffs and cuffs made of crepe georgette, organza or chiffon—with open-work so delicate that the material is almost like lace. And then very often decorated with microscopic pleats, which look as though only fairy fingers could have made them!

CLAM DIGGERS FIGHT
WARDENS OVER BANPitched Battle on Mud Flats
Results in One Arrest;
Victory in Doubt.

SUSPECT GETS MANACLES

Revere, Mass., June 26 (A.P.).—On the flats off Point of Pines in this city today 30 clam diggers and three game wardens engaged in a pitched battle. There is doubt as to who won, but of the clam diggers two, at least, achieved notice. One was arrested and the other left the scene of battle wearing a pair of manacles, the gift of one of the wardens.

Several weeks ago the waters of the section showed some pollution. A ban on clam digging was applied by the health authorities. To the diggers this meant only that, in addition to watching for clams, they had to watch for officers. This was apparently easy as the flats provided an excellent view of the mainland.

The wardens today, in some unexplained manner, reached the scene of operations. Their arrival was resented by the 30 diggers and the battle was on. Among the other unexpected happenings of the day was whether the diggers disarmed the arms of the law. Witnesses said that they did, that rifles carried by the wardens were taken from them. John Gallo, of this city, was the only representative of the diggers to make the trip to the Sausage police station with the wardens when they returned.

The others, including the man with the manacles, did not wait to escort the wardens over the muddy flats to shore.

Clam digging long has been one of the minor industries in this section. The digging is done mostly by those of foreign extraction, who market their products wherever they get the opportunity. Most of the clams, when the ban is not on, go to the roadside stands that sell fried clams to those visiting the beaches hereabouts.

14-Year-Old Killer Waives
His Preliminary Hearing

Pine Bluff, Ark., June 26 (A.P.).—Waiving preliminary hearing, Otis Hankins, 14, today was bound over without bond to the Jefferson County grand jury on a first degree murder charge for slaying his father, Wes W. Hankins, 60, a planter. After a night in jail the boy was brought before Municipal Judge S. A. Miller and asked whether he wished to waive preliminary hearing. He turned indifferently to his lawyer, H. K. Toney, and said, "Whatever you do will suit me." Toney waived the hearing.

He was then taken back to the county jail to await the funeral of his father later in the day, which he will attend in the custody of an officer. When asked how he wished to spend the time in jail he replied he would like to "have some books with good stories in them."

BEHIND THE SCREENS

With NELSON B. BELL

Has any one seen Katusha? Oh, Katusha is one of three pet chameleons presented Dolores Del Rio by a New Orleans admirer last week, and Katusha is lost. She may be in Washington by now.

Yesterday Senorita Del Rio astounded the maitre d'hôtel of the Belvedere in Baltimore, by asking for an order of live flies. The maitre d'hôtel blinked and, although I am not so informed, probably said, "Bluh," with that inquisitive, rising inflection peculiar to maitres d'hôtel.

Never before in his career had he been called upon to furnish a side dish of flies on the hoof and, quite naturally, his chagrin was not even so much as denied until Miss Del Rio made him understand that she wanted the flies for her pet—Katusha, Ramona and Katusha—then the order was taken seriously and, believe it or not, filled. Delivery was made in an ice cream carton and another achievement added to the Belvedere's service record.

But Katusha must not have been hungry for when Miss Del Rio, with the aid of Mrs. Ivy Wilson and her mother, Mrs. J. L. Asunsolo, of Mexico City, opened the small cage being used as a summer home by the lizards and the flies swarmed out. Katusha swarmed out. And Katusha has not been seen since, to any one's positive knowledge. But you know how these chameleons are about color schemes and blending with the backgrounds. What probably happened was that Katusha perched on the window ledge of her mistress' suite and in the hurried search that followed was mistaken for the Belvedere Hotel.

For the benefit of those who hadn't heard about it, Miss Del Rio, feminine star of "What Price Glory?" "Ramona," "Recreation," "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine" and numerous other colorful screen plays, has been in Baltimore these past few days appearing in person in conjunction with premiere presentations of her latest Edwin Carewe production, "Evangeline," at the Stanley Theater.

On last Monday an informal press dinner was given in honor of the star at the Belvedere, to which this column was graciously bid, but which, what with one thing and another, it was unable to attend.

Imagine our delight when it was discovered that, after all, our last opportunity to meet Miss Del Rio had not been booting out of the infield.

This morning, at 10:30, Miss Del Rio, in company with Herbert Rawlinson, and, I presume, other representatives of the Low interests in this city, will be received by President Hoover at the White House—which would fall utterly to penetrate the cloak of gloom in which I have been enshrouded since miffing the Baltimore dinner, were it not that as this is written I have just received a telegram from Miss Del Rio, explaining in some detail in what manner arrangements may be made to catch onto the costails of her party, so to speak, immediately following the White House audience.

I'm all a-twitter!

Speaking of Mr. Rawlinson, as we were incidentally, I am informed by Mr. Cullen, managing director of the Low houses, that the smiling master of ceremonies will be out of the cast of next week's revue at the Palace, but only for the one week.

Mr. Cullen particularly emphasizes the one week aspect of Mr. Rawlinson's absence by way of refuting the rumor that has already got abroad to the effect that "Hollywood's ambassador, etc.," will have completed his engagement at Thirteenth and F come Friday night. This, I am told, is the bunk. Mr. Rawlinson is going to make a movie-length short and then will be back July 6, to stage what I am tipped off will be a de luxe and very gala indeed "Surprise Party."

John J. Payette, supervisor of theaters for the Stanley-Crandall Company of Washington, and William C. ("Bill") Ewing, in charge of advertising and publicity, are leaving the capital to-night for New York to attend the regular monthly meeting of the Warner Brothers home office and divisional executives.

Guess what. Next week, beginning Saturday, at the Metropolitan, Kate Smith, Washington's own contribution to the theater's gallery of ballad and va-de-o-o artists, will lead the auxiliary features of a bill that will have George Bancroft in "Thunderbolt" as its major attraction. Kate will not appear in person, as she has on numerous occasions before, but will be starred in a new Vitaphone short subject, during which she sings two favorite songs—"Carolina Moon" and "Bless You, Sister."

Kate is billed as "The Song Bird of the South" and is just out for a lark!

While the list of attractions available for local consumption next week will be somewhat narrowed by the closing of two houses this Friday night, it still will offer diversified and excellent entertainment. The list: Fox, Victor, Laglen, in his first talking picture, "The Black Watch," Metropolitan, George Bancroft, with Pay Wray and Richard Arlen, in "Thunderbolt"; Palace, Lily Damita and Don Alvarado, in "The Bridge of San Luis Rey"; Earle, Lupe Velez and Gary Cooper, in "Wolf Song"; Columbia, the Four Marx Brothers, with Mary Eaton and Oscar Shaw, in "The Cocoanuts," held over.

If it's the front fenders that are wrinkled, the chances are she's not so careful.

The Return of OLD KING BRADY

Revived by MERLE W. HERSEY.

(Copyright Protected. Reproduction in Whole or in Part Prohibited.)

In the fourth chapter the Emerald comes to anchor in the bay of San Lopez. There soundings are made, but no trace of the wreck is found. Old King Brady and the men go ashore, leaving the captain on board the yacht. An earthquake occurs, followed by a tidal wave. When it subsides the yacht is carried down the coast. Then men on shore discover that the sand has been swept away in gullies, and in one of them the smokestack of the Belle of Bolton has been uncovered.

THE SEARCH FOR THE LOST FRISCO LINER.

CHAPTER V.

Bad News From the Yacht.

A search for the Emerald was the first thing to be made.

"Go down to the shore, boys, and see what you can learn. The doctor and I will remain here and investigate. Don't wander far, now, and with these words Old King Brady sent the boys on their way."

"What a pity that we had to lose the yacht just as we made this precious find," said the doctor.

"We are no more certain it is a precious find than we are that the yacht actually lost," replied Old King Brady. "We must not build our hopes too high before we investigate."

"They walked on down the line of the gully to the water's edge."

"Nothing to hinder us reaching the ship now, doctor!" exclaimed the detective. "Look there!" He pointed to a rope hanging down astern.

They walked on up the gully, in some places sinking ankle deep in the soft sand. There proved to be more of the rope than they had thought, for a good 30 feet of it was buried in the sand. They cut away some 30-odd feet of it to work with and returned to the top of the gully.

"If you could hold me, Brady, I'd be willing to go down," said the doctor.

"Don't believe I could do it. You're pretty heavy." He looked at him doubtfully. "I believe you could hold me, though."

"Dr. Stoppinham took a twist on the rope, and Old King Brady carefully lowered himself over the edge of the gully and slid down to the deck."

It was with a deep sense of awe that the detective paused and looked about him. His mind reverted to the night in the sanitarium when he sat listening to Jack Dutton's ravings. He could almost picture the terrible scenes which must have been enacted upon the deck of the Belle of Bolton before the end came. His reveries were interrupted by a call from the man above.

"Go on down into the cabin, Brady. I'm wild to know if the gold exists."

"And you may have to hold your horses for some time to come yet," replied the detective. "I may have difficulty getting into the treasure when I find it."

He walked aft and looked into the deckhouse. The room was filled with sand. Below he could hear water splashing about a dam, musty o's or ares which was "viciously unpleasant."

"This is a job for the divers," he thought. "I am not going to butt in here."

He returned to the deck. "No thoroughfare there, doctor," he called. "The cabin is full of water. We shall have to hold up a bit."

"Don't you think if you found the captain's stateroom, you might also find the treasure room?" The captain nearly always carries the key, and the room may open out of his."

In a moment Old King Brady had followed his direction and had located the captain's room. The door was not locked and the detective easily opened it. There was a solid door inside which proved to be locked.

The wood proved to be as soft as ". . . great to hear your voice!

About given you up!" Many an old friendship is revived over the telephone. And toll calls are so fast, so inexpensive, so convenient.

FIVE-DOLLAR PRIZE IN POWER BUILDING OVERCOMES 18 MEN

Dense Fumes in Laboratory
Imperil Workers as Fire

TRIO KEPT IN HOSPITAL,
SERIOUSLY AFFECTED

Rescue Squad Administrators
Oxygen to Visitors After They Conquer Flames.

Sixteen men, employees of the Potomac Electric Power Co., were overcome by fumes and smoke yesterday afternoon when a paint-spraying machine in the meter laboratory of the company's building, Thirteenth-and-a-half and B streets northwest, caught fire. Three of the victims are still being held in Emergency Hospital for treatment, the others having been dismissed after first aid had been given. The fire damage was not more than $5.

J. P. Moulton, 17 years old, Riverdale, Md.; Kenneth Hoffstadt, 19 years old, Hyattsville, Md.; and L. F. Tudge, 24 years old, 415 Good Hope road southeast, were the men most seriously affected. They inhaled considerable smoke which followed the fire and were kept at the hospital as a precaution against possible developments after the other men had been dismissed.

Others who were partially overcome by the smoke and paint fumes included: A. K. Brown, 38 years old, Alexandria, Va., assistant superintendent of the meter department; Louis Weaver, 24 years old, 1412 Oren street southeast; A. L. Burt, 27 years old, 5804 Seventh street northwest; R. L. Carvins, 22 years old, 331 Q street northwest; Norman Stant, 32 years old, 610 Farragut street northwest; Ralph Owen, 18 years old, 328 N street southwest; Gordon Pluge, 23 years old, 1310 Thirteenth street northwest; A. L. Stack, 26 years old, Hyattsville, Md.; H. P. Rose, 19 years old, McLean, Va.; P. D. Fellows, 30 years old, 818 Buchanan street northwest; R. L. Jennings, 24 years old, 435 B street southeast; C. B. Busby, 27 years old, Silver Spring, Md.; and W. P. Abendschein, 19 years old, 5616 Eighth street northwest.

Employees Conquer Fire.
According to R. K. Brown, assistant superintendent of the meter department, the fire was discovered at 2:15 o'clock in the paint spraying booth in the meter laboratory of the Potomac Electric Power Co. building at Thirteenth and a-half and B streets corner.

"The machine was not in use, Brown declared. It is equipped with an exhaust fan and its sides are covered with the lacquer used in spraying small machines. When the fire broke out the machine began to pump out smoke which poured into the room in which the sixteen men were working. It filled the room from the ceiling down to within 2 feet of the floor.

Employees quickly grabbed fire extinguishers and the fire lasted only a few moments. The first of the men to get under the paint of smoke into the clear air of the next room.

Recalls Cleveland Blast.
Knowing that the lacquer used in the spraying machine contained substances similar to that used in making of films and recalling the recent Cleveland Clinic Hospital disaster, Brown ordered all the men in the room taken to Emergency Hospital, fearing that the smoke might have contained a poisonous gas.

At the hospital, assistance was asked of the Fire Rescue Squad, which responded with additional men and equipment. Each of the men affected was given oxygen and in a short time most of them were able to leave the hospital.

A curious feature of the fire was that it burned all around the top of the spraying machine, but did not even scorch the bottom of the machine. It was that a cigarette had been tossed into the machine, but in that case the fire would have burned up from the bottom.

Damage Is Trifling.
The only visible evidence of the fire is a small square of blackened ceiling directly above the spraying machine and the charred top of the machine itself. Had the fan been working, Brown added, he believes the entire building would have been blown out by the ventilator. He is at a loss to account for the cause of the blaze.

The accident happened so quickly and was over in such a short time that many of the employees of the company were unaware of it until the men were being taken to the hospital.

Three Months' Further
Bus Fare Trial Asked

A three months' further trial of the present District fare on the buses of the Washington, Baltimore and Annapolis motor bus line was asked of the public utilities commission yesterday by L. L. Altman, president of the bus line, which operates in the District from Ninth street and Pennsylvania avenue to Broadway Heights at the District line.

The present fare is ten cents for 15 or 18 cents cash. The former fare was four cents for 10 or 15 cents cash. Altman voluntarily requested reduction in the fare for April and May as an experiment in attracting more passengers. At the expiration of the two months he asked to go back to the old fare, saying his line had lost money.

Ralph S. Fiehrer, people's counsel, said that the District passengers had increased in number during the lower fare period. The utilities commission withheld decision following a public hearing. It is expected to approve the extension request today. The three months would date from Sunday.

Rhode Island Avenue Society
Seeks Storm Sewer, Better

NOISE IN STREET DECIED

Plans for a community celebration on the Fourth of July were made last night by the Rhode Island Avenue Citizens Association, meeting in the Sherwood Church Hall, Rhode Island avenue and Twenty-second street northwest. There will be a parade with patriotic floats representing the thirteen original colonies, a program of athletics for the younger members of the community and an elaborate display of fireworks.

Objections were voiced from the distribution of uncollected circulars and samples and the noise made by buses and bus drivers in the community.

The association went on record as favoring the immediate construction of a storm sewer in the Grand Valley section, because of difficulties experienced during recent heavy rains. A more exacting traffic safety program was urged and the association was reported prepared to cooperate with city leaders to cut down the number of automobiles.

United States Marshal E. C. Snyder addressed the meeting. Horace Taylor, librarian of the Masonic Temple, gave reading. Four new members were elected, Nelson P. Donaldson, L. A. Frey, James H. Woodburn and Charles T. Berlin.

Parade to Usher In Encampment

Veterans of Foreign Wars
Have Demonstration in Georgetown Tonight.

Opening of the annual encampment of the Veterans of Foreign Wars in Georgetown tonight will be marked by a parade in which many patriotic and service organizations will participate.

Charles H. Kelly, past department commander, is grand marshal of the parade, assisted by Lieut. Charles E. Weidner, retired, and George Scheibel as assistant marshals.

The parade will move at 6:30 o'clock tonight, forming on M street northwest between Twenty-fifth and Twenty-sixth streets. It will move south on Twenty-sixth street, past the department headquarters, west to M street, west to Thirty-first street, north on Thirty-first street to B street and west to the reviewing stand at Western High School.

The parade will be composed of the following divisions: Police escort, grand marshal and aids, Victory Post American Legion Drum Corps, detachments of the United States Army, United States Navy, United States Marine Corps and United States Coast Guard; Cosello Post American Legion; Cosello Post National Guard and cadets; Benevolent Order of Elks; marching units of the Mystic Order of the Shrine; Capt. Frank H. Lockhead, department commander; Veterans of Foreign Wars; posts of the Veterans of Foreign Wars; National Capital Post 127; Equality-Walker Post 284; Federal Post 824; Columbia Post 833; Potomac Post 1065; Fort Line Post 1401; and the Ladies Auxiliary, Veterans of Foreign Wars.

The present fare is ten cents for 15 or 18 cents cash. The former fare was four cents for 10 or 15 cents cash. Altman voluntarily requested reduction in the fare for April and May as an experiment in attracting more passengers. At the expiration of the two months he asked to go back to the old fare, saying his line had lost money.

Ralph S. Fiehrer, people's counsel, said that the District passengers had increased in number during the lower fare period. The utilities commission withheld decision following a public hearing. It is expected to approve the extension request today. The three months would date from Sunday.

Navy Yard Seeks Picture Of Former Commandant

In order to complete a collection of pictures of the commandants of the Washington Navy Yard, the Navy Department wants to obtain a picture of Capt. John R. Rudder, who commanded the yard from 1888 to 1893. It was announced yesterday.

The Navy Department wants to get a picture of relatives of the former commandant, but have been unsuccessful in their efforts. According to the records of the department, Capt. Rudder was born in Rhode Island and was appointed in 1814 to the Navy from Virginia.

During the Mexican War he commanded the U. S. S. Union and the U. S. S. Dale. Later he commanded the U. S. S. Constitution, which was then with the Mediterranean Squadron.

Friend Saves Man In Gas-Filled Room

Steamfitter Sought Death
Over Home Difficulties,
Report to Police.

Reported to have attempted suicide by locking himself in his room and turning on five gas jets, Albert G. Day, 24 years old, a steamfitter, of 805 B street southeast, was saved from probable death yesterday afternoon when a friend broke in the door and called an ambulance from Casualty Hospital.

The friend, Vernon Cornwell, of 1197 Fort street northeast, had gone to visit Day at the time the latter locked himself in the room. It was reported, suspecting that something was amiss after receiving no response, Cornwell knocked down the door and found his friend unconscious in the gas-filled room, he told police.

Day's condition was said to be serious at Casualty. Police said he had been dependent over domestic difficulties.

Man Who Summoned Firemen Gets Clemency

Convicted of charges of turning in a false alarm and intoxication, Samuel S. Dant, 69 years old, was fined $25 yesterday in Police Court by Judge Gus A. Schuldt.

Testimony of Elizabeth Griffith saved Dant from a more severe penalty. She told the court that Dant became involved in an argument with another man and when his opponent threatened violence Dant called the police.

Evidently under the impression that a fire alarm box was connected with the police station, the witness said, Dant turned on an alarm. Fireman S. H. Craddock placed him under arrest. On recommendation of Assistant Police Court Judge Schuldt, Dant was given a suspended sentence of $100 or 90 days in jail on the first alarm charge, but was fined $25 on the drunk accusation.

Homicide Squad Expects Arrest in Killing Soon

Members of the homicide squad said last night that they expected the arrest within a few days of John P. Nichols, 1742 Eighth street northwest, who the detectives believe was responsible for the mortal wounding of George Nichols, colored, 23 years old, of 44 G street northwest.

Nichols was shot by a man thought to be four after an altercation at the Washington Hotel, Thirteenth and T streets northwest. He died almost instantly.

Approximately 8,000 telephone numbers will be changed in the old Main and Franklin central offices for the dialing of the dial system of telephones, which is scheduled for the spring or early summer of 1930.

Practically all of the main numbers have been eliminated with this issue of the directory, together with 60 per cent of the Franklin numbers. They will be found bearing District, National and Metropolitan numbers.

It will be noticed that the first two letters of all the main numbers have been eliminated with this issue of the directory, together with 60 per cent of the Franklin numbers. They will be found bearing District, National and Metropolitan numbers.

The improvement in the service was effected by experts of the telephone company in cooperation with Admiral H. H. Rousseau, chief coordinator of the Government, and the board on the simplified system of office procedure in damages yesterday in the District Supreme Court by Mary A. Constant, a clerk in the Postoffice Department, on charges of perjury.

While walking at Twelfth and C streets northwest on January 10 she was struck and knocked down by a bus belonging to the National City Lines, which was being backed to unload the pipes, the plaintiff says. Attorneys Rolland L. Nutt and Harlan Wood appeared for the woman.

A fine of $100 on four charges of larceny was imposed on Mrs. Bertha Shields, 40 years old, yesterday by Judge Gus A. Schuldt in Police Court. She withdrew her demand for a jury trial and changed her plea from not guilty to guilty on all the charges.

Mrs. Shields was arrested on February 5 by Mrs. Cecelia Clark, of the 5th Ward, Mrs. Bureau, after complaints had been made by officials of several downtown department stores.

DOG OWNERS WARNED TAGS EXPIRE SUNDAY

City Poundmaster Instructed to Be Lenient for Few Days
After July 1.

Muzzling Order Is Cited

Attention was called by the District Health Department yesterday to the fact that all dog licenses issued since July 1 of last year will expire Sunday, and that new 1929-30 licenses must be obtained as soon as possible thereafter. The statement issued by the department said:

"The poundmaster will continue to impound all untaxed dogs, but, because of the impossibility of all owners procuring new tags for their dogs on the first day of July, he will not for the first few days of that month impound dogs running at large who are wearing tags issued during the past fiscal year, provided such dogs are otherwise maintained in compliance with the law."

As soon, however, as it is apparent from the absence of a large number of applicants at the collector of taxes office that the public generally has been able to secure licenses, a vigorous effort will be made to impound all dogs not wearing tags indicating that a license has been procured on or after July 1, 1929.

The department also called attention to the Commission's recent proclamation ordering the muzzling of all dogs and warned residents of the District against playing with, petting or otherwise handling dogs because of the danger of being bitten.

Rotarians Honor Retiring Officers

George Whitwell and J. A. Mears Are Presented With Gifts.

Gifts to the retiring president and secretary of the Rotary Club of the District of Columbia were presented yesterday by the club at a luncheon at the Willard Hotel. George M. Whitwell presided over his last meeting as president of the club.

Arthur J. May was introduced into the duties of presiding by Mr. Whitwell. The new president, Mr. May, is a well-known industrialist in the field, which he has been for many years. He is a member of the club and has been for many years.

Mr. May spoke on the remarkable advancement of all industry in the past few years, pointing out that there are well over 100,000 new jobs in the field, which were unknown five years ago. These, he declared, have absorbed the 10,000,000 workers who have been previously reduced the need for men in other lines. Taylor declared that his railroad, which has been for many years, and that neither can exist without the other.

Rotarians enjoyed a special treat in the form of a musical program by the Pennsylvania Railroad Quartet.

LARGEST FIRE HOUSE IN DISTRICT IS ASKED IN WATSON ESTIMATE

Proposed Structure to Care for Two Companies Is Called Necessary.

SITE AND BUILDING COST
SET AT $301,750 TOTAL

Protected Area Is Business
Zone, Highest Value Territory.

Building of the largest fire engine house in the District on the north side of K street between Twelfth and Thirteenth streets northwest is provided for in the 1931 fire department estimates now before the District Commissioners.

The new house was proposed by Fire Chief George S. Watson to house Engine Company No. 16, now on D street, near Twelfth, and Truck Company No. 3, the water tower on Fourteenth street, Ohio avenue. The District battalion chief and night quarters for the chief of the department.

Several sites which have been selected by fire department officials for the new fire engine house will cost approximately $133,000, while the house will cost $158,000. The alarm system will cost $1,750 and other work will bring the total estimated cost to $301,750.

Need for House Pressing.
The need for the new fire house is pressing, according to Chief Watson. Both of the fire houses in it to supplant the existing structure, which is located on K street near Thirteenth, it is said.

These were changed, Watson said, for several reasons, including the high cost of the necessary ground and the narrowness of the streets and the congestion of traffic on them.

Selection of the K street site came as a surprise when it was disclosed yesterday. Plans which had been made for the new house, which would be located near Pennsylvania avenue.

Nurse "Makes Pass" At Man; Is Arrested

Washington nurse who admits "making a pass" yesterday at James C. Tipton, 180-pound real estate man.

When Venable and I called at Mr. Tipton's office and I received no satisfaction, I threatened to appeal to the court. This infuriated Tipton, and he swore at me and used vile language," Mrs. Johnston said.

It was then, Mrs. Johnston said, that she "made her pass," which missed its mark. The attractive nurse is tall and of athletic frame, and Tipton is a large, well-developed man.

Police are called.
Baggett entered the dispute when Tipton picked up a telephone in his office and asked for police, according to Baggett, who said that after he had secured the telephone Tipton called down and agreed to meet Mrs. Johnston at a downtown bank today and pay her the money. When they left, however, Tipton secured warrants for their arrest.

When Sergt. Ogle and Weber served the warrants on the couple they drove to headquarters in Mrs. Johnston's expensive new high-powered automobile, and were accompanied by a friend who called in Attorney Joseph D. Kelly to represent them. After a conference at headquarters Kelly arranged for Mrs. Johnston to be taken to the police station on $500. They will appear in Police Court this morning.

Tipton is the president of the J. C. Tipton Co., a real estate company, and the widow of the late Edward S. Johnston, who at the time of his death some months ago was a drugist at St. Elizabeth's Hospital. Johnston is a native of Atlanta, Ga., and came to this city about two years ago, she said.

How Occurs Over Debt.
According to Mrs. Johnston, who is employed by Dr. William Perry Morgan, the disturbance occurred when she and Baggett went to Tipton's office in the Continental Trust Building to collect a $500 debt which has been owing Mrs. Johnston since January 31.

"I loaned Tipton the money to save the life of a child," she said. "I had a four-year-old child, and Tipton, who is a doctor, had a child who was dying. I loaned him the money to save the child's life, and he has not paid me back yet."

She exhibited the note and her canceled check endorsed by Tipton.

Interior Decorator
Is Divorced by Wife

Mrs. Gertrude Fischer, of 2102 H street northwest, was granted an interlocutory decree of absolute divorce by Justice Jennings Ball yesterday from Arthur Fischer, an interior decorator. The decree granted the wife custody of their minor daughter, now in Mulhausen, Germany.

Through her counsel, Raymond B. Dickey and E. C. Kriz, the plaintiff stated she has already paid nearly $11,000 into the corporation, in addition to $700 for special assessments. She said she has never been informed of the purpose for the special assessments.

Mrs. Lawson declared she took an apartment in the building in October, 1920, and has kept up her payments.

Drummer Asks $10,000
For Damages From Blow

Suit for $10,000 damages against Charles W. Rice, of 922 Farragut street northwest, was filed yesterday in the District Supreme Court by George S. Tillinghast, a trap drummer, of 2121 New York avenue northwest. As the result of an assault by the defendant, Tillinghast, a trap drummer, complained his hearing has been affected and he has not been able to perform his duties as a trap drummer.

The trap drummer declared Rice struck his severe blow on the head with his open hand at the stage entrance of the Police Theater, 16,
